Laval, having said for France that the League of Nations must prevent the Ethiopian war, promises the English her NAVAL assistance. This hands the "chairmanship" to England, promises only ships, avoids any material sacrifice of men.

Mussolini replied to these talks about "belling the cat" by sending 14,000 more Italian troops to Ethiopia.

Mussolini is not alone in his desire for war. On today, in the Ethiopian capital, Addis Ababa, according to the Associated Press, "two thousand shouting Ethiopians" yelling, "WE WANT WAR!" gathered before the imperial palace demanding weapons. The Associated Press says:

"The scene was so violent that police confined motion picture films of it."

That was wise, because films might have convinced the outside world that Ethiopians and Italians are much alike "under the skin."

On September 17, 1877, the United States Constitution was adopted. In New York city, one "new thought" type of man says we need a new Constitution, better adapted to a bigger country, and he could write it. Many Americans have had that idea, hundreds are ready to write a better Constitution. Some of them would be surprised to know the amount of talent that went into the old Constitution. Also, it seems to have worked pretty well.

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, widow of President Roosevelt, praising the Constitution on the radio, used in support of that ancient document the best possible quotation, from George Washington:

"The basis of our political system is the rights of the people to make and alter their Constitutions of government. But the Constitution that at any time exists, until changed by the explicit and authentic act of the whole people, is sacredly obligatory upon it."

That ought to please everybody, but apparently it does not.

Dispatches from Tokyo tell of planning political murder wholesale.

The "God-send" troops that have committed occasional murders in highest places are tired of "occasional" murders, and decided to wipe out the Japanese cabinet in an air raid with bombs, destroy the financial district of Tokyo, assassinate hundreds of industrial financial leaders, and "re-establish imperial despotism."

The burning of buildings to put the throne and Tokyo in a state of chaos was part of the plan.

The last issue of Senator Huey Long's newspaper, "The American Progress," comes to hand. "Five cents per copy," and the first article on the front page says:

"Long has 100 per cent record." William Green of the American Federation of Labor and others certify that Senator Huey "has consistently supported labor and labor measures."

Whatever the senator's record, it is closed now.

Hitler, talking to his army about "iron discipline," blames Christianity and the Bohemians for the rise of Communism that "I trusted when I came to power." Whether he crumbed it or not remains to be seen.

He says:

"The most stringent selection of the fittest church leaders is necessary if the Nazi party is to fulfill its duties."

Then, sentimentally, referring to his death for the third time since he came to power, Chancellor Hitler said:

THE WEATHER

Overcast, rising temperature tonight and Wednesday, probably occasional showers Wednesday; moderate southerly winds.

Fr. Coughlin Opens 'Anti-Communist' School

By International News Service

Detroit, Sept. 17.—Rev. Charles E. Coughlin today announced plans for an anti-Communist school in which youth will be taught to "hate" the Red flag.

He expressed hope his school, the first institution of its kind, ultimately would become the cornerstone of a nation-wide drive by youth against the "Red menace."

He asserted students would be taught Communism "so they can fight it."

His complete plan, coupled with a bitter attack on Communism and the reason he had induced children in his parochial school to march with outstretched arms to hate Communism, followed.

Raising of $300,000 for construction of a school building. A school large enough for at least 100 children.

Establishment of a curriculum covering around anti-Communist courses.

Attracting to it line up other schools to follow the plan for the new school.

Dedication of the new school to Father Paul, a Jesuit priest, "first martyr in Communism in Mexico, in 1924."

"We will teach Communism — we will teach it to the youth — we will teach it to the youth — we will teach it to the youth."

Fr. Coughlin disclosed he established a board to direct the school and appointed its seven members three weeks ago. The board includes Rev. J. J. Christy, Michigan manager of the HOLC.

Pending completion of the school, Fr. Coughlin said the anti-Communist course will be introduced at St. Theresa parochial school. The school has 200 pupils and all of them who have passed the fourth grade will find "anti-Red" lessons in their textbooks.

'I AM PRESIDENT'

"My First Days in the White House"

By HUEY LONG

In preceding installments Huey Long is elected President of the United States and names an amazing Cabinet which includes such figures as Herbert Hoover, William E. Borah, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Al Smith and others.

He orders a census taken of all families whose annual income is less than $2500 and all families not possessing a homestead valued at $5000. The order creates a sensation.

The story continues:

CHAPTER III

(Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

On my return to the White House, after delivering my message to Congress, I found General Smedley D. Butler, my Secretary of War, and General Lytle Brown, my Secretary of Interior, waiting to see me.

I greeted them warmly. It seemed that I understood them more intimately than some of my other appointees to the cabinet.

"Why in the world did you ever pick on me for this job?" were General Brown's first words.

"Why, I haven't seen you in years—now since we worked together on the Mississippi River flood control problem."

"Well, General, we have the greatest development project ever known in the world now," I said. "Your

Old North Visitors Periled by Rocks

Two women sightseers viewing the interior of the historic Old North Church on Hanover street, North End, narrowly missed injury today when a rock battery deposed on the church.

The rocks, hurled by three 15-year-old boys, crashed through several windows. The women visitors were showered with flying glass.

The attack on the church is the second in two days. A police guard was ordered at the request of W. M. Keith, sexton. Police named boyish pranksters.

ITALY CALLS SHIPS FOR SEN WAR

"Killed in Air Battle"

By Associated Press

Addis Ababa, Sept. 17.—Emperor Haile Selassie told the Associated Press today that if the League of Nations recommends a tripartite protectorate of Ethiopia he will reject the suggestion outright.

By Associated Press

Both Italy and Great Britain marshaled their naval strength today as the hour drew near for the League of Nations council to make its decision in the Italo-Ethiopian dispute.

Mussolini recalled from the reserve Italy's two largest battle-ships, the Duilio and the Doria, each carrying 13 12-inch guns.

The premier also sent orders to squadron commanders in the Mediterranean, Adriatic and Red Sea to shape the navy into compact fighting units.

A large-scale British fleet of only 19 ships steamed up off Port Said and massed in the Gulf of Suez, but doubt was expressed as to just where the tactics would take place or how many vessels would be involved.

About 20,000 troops awaited orders in South England.

ITALY PLINGS ON

Alexandria, Lebanon, undersecretary of state for Italian colonies, stated an article written expressly for the Associated Press that Italy "does not want a crusade against colored people."

Letona compared the United States' action in Mexico and Cuba to the Italian plan and declared:

"Italy does not back down. Even if some people are obstinate in failing to understand her, she proceeds straight ahead on her path with a serene conscience."

While curiously was aroused as to the whereabouts of the mysterious absent vessels of the British fleet, five of the nation's mightiest battle cruisers, which left Portland under secret orders after schematically to arrive in Greek waters between September 25 and October 1.

In "Addis Ababa, Emperor Haile Selassie, haughty 3000 of his troops on raw mules in celebration of their victory over the invaders on the frontiers. The soldiers sang war songs and repeated the Adowa chant of victory."

Pilot Fells Koenecke in Battle

"Killed in Air Battle"

By Associated Press

Toronto, Sept. 17.—A melodramatic fight in an airplane high over the Long Branch race track in the dark early today resulted in the death of Len Koenecke, 31, outfielder of the Brooklyn National League baseball team.

William Joseph Mulgrew, who was piloting the plane, and Irwin Davis, his assistant, said they killed Koenecke in self-preservation.

They were arraigned on manslaughter charges in suburban Michigan police court. They were not asked to plead and were remanded until Friday morning, pending the outcome of the adjourned inquest, which will be held Thursday night.

Magistrate Douglas J. Keith did not hear any request for bail, but Mulgrew, counsel for the two fliers, said he would confer at once with Attorney-General Arthur W. Macdonald on Koenecke's regard to a bond to liberate the plane.

SHOW NO EMOTION

The tired defendants heard the manslaughter charge read without betraying any emotion.

Davis and Koenecke were locked in a desperate battle, the flier told police.

After with the plane rocking, party out of control, as the pilot fought to keep one end on the ground, Mulgrew struck Koenecke several blows on the head with a fire extinguisher.

The pilot then made a forced landing in which the plane was damaged.

Koenecke, sent home from St. Louis by the Dodgers, had chartered the plane at Detroit for a trip to Buffalo.

Mulgrew, in a voluntary signed statement, gave this graphic story of the police.

PROXY BRIDE'S FATE

Put on Probation For Year

Taunton, Sept. 17.—Suspended sentence of Lancaster and a year's probation were meted out to Gloria Rego, 15-year-old proxy bride, in juvenile court today.

Gloria married Herbert Hince Mansfield, Jr., Providence lunch room counterman, under the name of Vesta Jean Johnson, the 15-year-old Nantuxet high school student.

Miss Hince's stubborn denial that she was the man's wife brought Mansfield's mystery romance to its sensational head.

In court today Judge Frederick E. Austin placed to file a charge of conspiracy to violate the marriage laws.

Gloria was released in custody of her father, Anthony Rego. Mansfield told authorities he had never seen Gloria before the time he sold her to substitute for Vesta, for whom he professed great love, in a mock marriage ceremony.

Mansfield is in jail waiting disposition of his case. He pleaded guilty to entering the proxy marriage.

Bey Flees Under

Hail of Bullets

Hudley, Sept. 17.—Under a hail of bullets by nearly 100 state troopers, John Bey, fugitive alleged slayer of a Connecticut constable, escaped his hunters today.

Bey, accused iron alumber in a patch of ferns as he heard the troopers closing in, scrambled into the protection of the woods between Hookum and River roads.

In his flight he abandoned a .35-caliber repeating rifle. He is believed to carry, however, two .35-caliber revolvers.

Accompanied by a bloodhound, the troopers began a search of the woods for the fugitive.

He is alleged to have shot and killed Constable John B. D'Arcy of Connecticut and yesterday to have wounded Trooper Edward Risk in the arm when Risk attempted to arrest him near East Hadley.

Coldest Spot in Nation

THAT'S BOSTON TODAY; WARM WAVE DUE

Crops Hit

Summer shivers so with the cold today that the couldn't rehearse her valedictory. She'll warm up to it, tomorrow.

Sub-freezing temperatures and frost caused heavy damage to farm and garden crops throughout New England, especially to cranberries on the Cape Cod bogs.

Boston was the coldest big city and southeastern Massachusetts the coldest spot in the nation. Lack of heat closed an Andover school.

The Hub's low mark, 47 at 4, 5, 6, and 7 a. m., established a 48-year record for the date but set all-time record for September was smashed in many outlying sections.

At Hallowell the low mark was 24; at Pembroke and Norton it was 26. Many cranberry growers in the vicinity of Carver neglected to frost their bogs last night and their crops froze as the mercury dropped there to well below 32.

Frost was general in the Middlesex valley lowlands and through New Hampshire where, at Concord, an official 35 was the lowest in 85 years of September 17th.

The Andover school to close was the new building housing the high and junior high schools. There was no heating facility and 1000 pupils were sent home.

The unseasonable cold will end tonight, the weather man predicted. Cloudy skies, probable showers and rising temperature tomorrow was the forecast.

Ray, investigator, have been sent home.

Miss Knight, who is 17, was a student at the University of Chicago. Her father, director of admissions, said today.

His niece, Lucile Norton, from the university, charging she was being exposed to Communist influence, and precipitated a state investigation of the university's course.

DEATH HALTS ATLAS TRIAL

By Associated Press
New York, Sept. 17.—The federal court trial of William L. Jarvis and Samuel L. Galt, for alleged "peppering" of the price of Atlas Tack Corporation stock was postponed today until tomorrow.

This was because of the death Saturday in Boston of Jarvis' 33-year-old daughter.

The Boston defendants and 14 others are charged with using the mails to defraud, impeding the telephone and conspiracy.

Doorstep Arrest 'Whitewash' Seen

Lyons police are "covering up" in the arrest of Frank W. White, 34, on his own doorstep for alleged "peppering" of the price of Atlas Tack Corporation stock.

The mayor also predicted that when he gets the complete report tomorrow on the "Whitewash" it will probably be a "whitewash."

"It usually is in the police department," he said. "That's one thing used to a great extent in the police department—whitewash—why it never appears in the budget."

Mayor Manning also asserted that police are usually too secretive in cases involving criticism of themselves, with the result that when the real story does come out, it usually seems worse.

White was arrested while he claims he was waiting on his doorstep for the return of his mother from Lynn Hospital, where one of her grandsons, William A. Felt, Jr., 40, of Lincoln street, Lynn, had just died from auto injuries.

The Felt's boy was buried today.

Fred W. Roberts, of Chittenden road, and James F. Burns, of Pearson road, both of Somerville, are recovering today from injuries to their hands received when their car collided with another at the corner of Myrtle avenue and General Lawrence Highway.

$100,000 BLAZE IN CHELSEA

Two storage buildings of the North Shore Paper Company on Eastern avenue, Chelsea, were destroyed today by a general alarm fire that caused damage estimated at $100,000.

Five miles of hose line were used as the Chelsea fire fighters, aided by apparatus summoned from Revere, Everett, Winthrop, East Boston and Charlestown blocked around the flames.

Feeding on bales of waste paper, the flames leaped at times 100 feet in the air, menacing a group of 18 other storage buildings and attracting thousands to the scene.

The cause was undetermined, possibly spontaneous combustion. The estimate of $100,000 damage was made by Fire Chief David M. Hudson.

The buildings destroyed were among the group owned by the United States Rubber Company, located adjacent to Chelsea creek and formerly occupied by a mill and sidings formerly known as the Old Revere Rubber Mill. During recent years the buildings have been leased for storage to several paper concerns.

Fire started in the long single story brick building known as 2-B and spread to a similar building called C.

A towering column of dense black smoke was visible for miles and reports were general that the Revere Rubber Mill, on the opposite side of Chelsea creek, was in flames. The old farm was not endangered.

There was nobody in the building when the fire was discovered by Anna McLeod, of Dexter street, Chelsea, a watchman. The Chelsea department sped to the scene from a house built in Vale street.

ERA Men Strike In Providence

Providence, Sept. 17.—Just before noon today 250 ERA workers at the North Carolina went on strike, they charged Thomas Enright, former ERA leader, with carrying out a specific order issued by him.

The men refused to be taken to go to the office of Edward Kelly, public welfare commissioner. They also refused to work.

The 250 promptly quit work, perched atop of Lombards and smoked their pipes.

Fire Evacuates Nudist Camp

By Associated Press
Ontario, Calif., Sept. 17.—Nudist members of the Arcadian Club looked vainly today for the leafy shrubbery that afforded shelter before their rude ejection yesterday.

A forest fire in secluded Stoddard Canyon stripped it of underbrush and caused the nudists to flee.

More than 2000 firefighters brought the flames under control during an all-night battle.

About 50 members of the nudist group scampered from the canyon, carrying behind them blankets and trees to escape spectators, but the police in their hiding places by

ERA AND PUPILS MUST WORK, SAYS ROTCH

Massachusetts high school boys and girls who receive federal student aid in the new youth program will be obliged to work about the schoolyard or schoolhouse.

The type of employment will be left to the discretion of the high school principals who certify the students, Arthur G. Rotch, ERA administrator, announced today.

However, should work interfere with the studies, then no work will be given, Rotch said.

"The matter will be left with the principals or school superintendents. They will decide what kind of work shall be done or whether any work shall be done."

"The 10 monthly stipend is the maximum. In many cases, this amount will not be given if not necessary. That, again, will be discretionary with the high school principals."

Edward L. Casey, former Harvard football coach and now mentor of Boston's professional footballers, will direct the youth program.

Funds have already gone out to school superintendents. Administrator Rotch said, to enable the program to get under way immediately with the opening of schools.

Rotch said federal student aid will not affect other members of families working under the WPA.

FIRST FUNDS ARRIVE
The colleges and towns will be benefited by the college program by which students who are poor, federal aid will be given.

Rotch announced that the first actual money, specified by his $200,000 state program submitted to federal authorities two months ago, were received today.

Confirmations of minor projects in 15 cities and towns in the state to cost $800 were sent him.

He explained that should the blanket program be approved, the fourth of the projects, first of the WPA projects, will be deducted from the allotted budgets to the towns.

New Noses, Ears, Made By Surgeon

By Associated Press
Cincinnati, Sept. 17.—Dr. Oscar V. Balson, of Philadelphia, before the American Academy of Ophthalmology, today described results of five years of research.

He has produced, he says, artificial ears and noses that can be molded and applied by the person to "wear" them.

Dr. Balson, professor of anatomy of the graduate school of medicine, University of Pennsylvania, in an interview, explained the first step in the making of a wax cast of the face—minus the missing member.

Aided sometimes by photographs, he to the case of a nose, which later has been disfigured or destroyed—he constructs a permanent mold.

Into this, a composition of flint, tinted gelatin and glycerin is poured, and a "true-life" ear or nose is the result.

The number is applied by the patient with the aid of an epinephrine.

It lasts three to 10 days, and according to Dr. Balson, "then an older lady, the patient, simply melts the old nose, or ear, in the original mold," and replaces it.

JUNE'S WRATH

Upset by Robbery Rumors Bought Gems Herself, She Says

JUNE KNIGHT Knew Max "Slightly"

By BETTY DIPESA
Bad enough to be bound, gagged and robbed of $5000 worth of her jewelry, but even worse somebody intimates that the jewels were just presents from Paul Ames or Max Bear, anyhow.

So said June Knight today, in rather a dudgeon over the whole thing. The robbery took place in her New York apartment over the week-end.

Miss Knight, ex-wife of Ames and exhort interest of Ames, is in Boston, getting ready for the opening of "Jubilee" at the Shubert, Thursday.

All but one of the pieces of loot were bought and paid for by Miss Knight out of her own hard-earned cash, she explained. It is like this:

"Why Paul never once bought me a wedding ring. And as for Max—I knew him very slightly. Both of which statements may come as a surprise, or a couple of surprises, but Miss Knight continued:

"We don't talk any more about my former husband. But I'll tell you this about Max."

Mother Along
"His mother and my mother went to school together. That's how we met. Whenever we went out to a night club or any place, both mother and Mr. Hoffman were along."

"We were just casual friends. I haven't seen him since his marriage and what's more, I wouldn't."

"I think it's a shame to couple our names the way some of the New York papers did in reporting last night."

Just the thought of that robbery made June sigh.

The only thing these robbers left me was my diamond anklet bracelet.

"They took a five-karat emerald-cut diamond ring, a 15-diamond finger ring, two gold bracelets, a diamond watch and a gold Egyptian ring."

"I was so proud of that emerald-cut diamond, too. I bought it for myself in California. The other things, too—except the gold ring—Jackie Suzanne, daughter of the famous Philadelphia artist, gave me the Egyptian ring."

Miss Knight was asked—how pointedly—whether Max Bear hadn't caused her heart a flutter or two. Just to be sure—she was also asked—

"If it wasn't Max—who is 17? And Miss Knight positively beamed at the replied:

"Tom Lake, an awfully nice boy in the radio game out in Los Angeles."

And, she concluded: "What is more, he gets very perturbed when he hears those rumors about Max and me."

'PRESIDENT HUEY' ON WEALTH PLAN

Would Use 10 Billion To Eliminate Dust Storms

great saying used to be "Go the whole hog." We're going it. You know that plan we discussed back there when I was Governor of Louisiana, don't you?"

"Yes, indeed," replied General Brown. "That plan was drafted while I was Chief of Army Engineers, and I started the first work under it."

"We were going as fast as we could, limited only by the amount of money Congress appropriated for us. The study and the plans are complete."

I picked up a morning newspaper from my desk and told Brown to read an article on the first page. It was dated from a western state.

It told of the great danger of blighting dust storms in the spring, due to lack of heavy snow during the winter months in the mountain and prairie land.

It said that unless the west got heavy snows before the middle of March, there would be another terrible dust storm blight in the spring.

"This looks very serious," said General Brown.

"I think so, too," I agreed, "and that is why I am putting you in charge of this vast program for the elimination of dust storms, the reclamation of waste lands, the control of floods, and the development of navigation and water power throughout the entire country."

"You mean you really going to carry out that ten-billion-dollar engineering program that we drafted while I was Chief of Army Engineers?" Brown inquired.

Explains 'Five-Year Program'

At Cost of 10 Billion Dollars

"Yes, and more," I said, "we will have to enlarge it before we are finished. For instance, you should take the surplus water of the Red River and divert it at North Texas so that it flows through other streams and finally into the Rio Grande. Texas streams need that water. So do their lands."

"Sure, didn't I tell you that, too?"

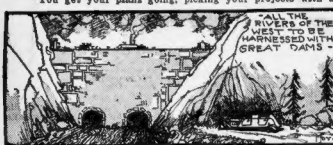

"Yes, but now I'm telling you."

"How will we proceed?" asked the General.

"It will come under the board of Army Engineers, but the construction will be handled through the Public Works Administration."

"Mr. President," said General Brown, "to have a lot of repetition, General Butler and I had better get hold of General Edward M. Markham, the present Chief of Army Engineers. The three of us can agree on proper plans for initiating this tremendous program."

"You get your plans going, picking your projects with a view to eliminating the menace of dust storms and floods as the first objective."

I told him: "I would like to complete this whole ten-billion-dollar program in five years. That would be at the rate of two billion dollars a year."

"If feasible, devote the first year's work to the dust storm area, so as to erect a water barrier against dust storms and to furnish water for that part of the country where dust storms arise, and for the sections where the dust storms do the most damage by destroying crops on otherwise fertile land."

"I think that's a very proper way of starting the program, Mr. President," agreed General Brown.

"Now, gentlemen, it may develop that you will have to move whole communities from the arid areas to the sites of the projects, first to furnish labor for the projects and second, possibly, because even these hardy westerners will be unable to live in the dust storm areas until we are able to control the storms."

"This moving of the people from the arid lands will be your job, General Butler."

"You will take charge of that just as soon as Brown tells you the number of workers he needs on his varied projects."

"You ought to be able to start work on the projects and the moving of the people as soon as the spring thaw arrives."

"Now, General Butler, this will be a great military problem. You know that in both Belgium and France one of the greatest problems in the early days of the war was the evacuation of the civilian population from military areas."

"We have never had an experience in this country along that line. Now, some day the army might be called over the Rocky Mountains, in the event our western coast were invaded or attacked from the air or by pestilence or disease."

"We never know what problems these new contrivances and inventions will bring to us."

Experience Should Be of Aid

In Event War Comes to U. S.

"In the moving of these people you will have a great military experience. I want you to file complete records in the archives of the War Department, particularly in relation to every mistake you make, and you will make plenty, so your plans can be corrected in the event some future government were faced with the same problem in time of war."

"You certainly are creating a problem which will be of great military importance," said General Butler. "I am eager to start work at once."

Turning to General Brown, he inquired:

"How many projects are there in this ten-billion-dollar program?"

General Brown replied:

"There are 3600 individual projects, including navigation improvements, reservoirs, levees, irrigation, and dams, scattered through virtually every state in the Union."

Huey's Drought Cure: Ten Billion and Army

"Take the U. S. Army and put it to work moving whole populations from western drought areas to territories adjacent to new dams and reservoirs. Your experience will be handy, if never have to evacuate the Pacific Coast in wartime." Such is "Secretary of War" Smedley D. Butler's assignment from "President" Huey Long.

"The primary purpose of this whole program is to control floods, improve navigation, provide water for irrigation, and, incidentally, create power projects."

"How many of these projects are in the drought areas?"

"Well, there are eight reservoirs to be built in Montana, besides 15 irrigation projects."

"In Wyoming there will be six reservoirs and about 13 irrigation projects."

"In Nebraska there will be eight more reservoirs and 10 irrigation projects."

"In Colorado there will be two great reservoirs and seven new irrigation projects."

"In Kansas there will be five reservoirs and many flood control projects."

"There will be 12 reservoirs and numerous flood control projects in Oklahoma, while Texas has 10 reservoirs."

"In the east, the plan includes reservoirs, dams and navigation improvements in every state from Maine to Florida."

"We took the money of our western taxpayers to help save us from the flood waters that came from their rivers."

"Now we are going out to these people who are our partners, and not only give them back some of their money, but also give them back some of their water."

"How do you think you will have better announce this plan pretty soon?" I asked.

"They are badly discouraged out there by the dust storms of the last three years, and the grave menace of similar storms in the future."

"These maps and the whole plan can be published at once," said General Brown. "I understand on some of the land the dust has blown so thick that, unless the area is properly watered, it will be many years before the land can be cultivated again."

"Of course, this dust is rich top soil, and a few heavy rains might make another story of it."

General Butler interrupted us.

"How does this program prevent dust storms?" he inquired.

"The idea is to retain the flood waters of these various western rivers in the mountains, up near the head waters of each stream."

"In the past the spring freshets and floods have roared in torrents down the rivers, causing tremendous floods and great damage in the lower part of each of these rivers, washing away top soil and robbing the upper country of its water supply."

"If we build a string of reservoirs near the head waters of these western streams, we will retain tremendous supplies of water in the mountains."

"The trouble in the dust storm area of the west has been that the countryside got no rain."

Reservoirs in Mountains

Will Bring End to Dust Storms

"It couldn't very well get rain when even the mountains were dry."

"We believe that these huge reservoirs in the hills will supply a source of rain, in addition to permitting the construction of thousands of irrigation projects in sections which did not get rain even in normal periods."

"Will Congress appropriate the necessary money?"

"There is no question about that," I replied. "By the time you have completed your project, the wealth of America will have been increased by not less than some $50 to $100 billions of dollars, and the people employed in the meantime."

"Besides that, we can pay for it either by general taxation or from our share-of-war program. You need not worry about the cost."

"The American people will be far more eager to spend ten billion dollars on this wealth-giving and far-sighted program than it was to squander billions on the hit-or-miss programs of the last administration."

Both Generals arose. As I shook hands with General Butler, I said:

"Gentlemen, we've got lots of cobwebs to sweep out of the War Department. Of course, it is a wonderful institution, but you know there must be a number of things changed."

"I know something about military aviation, and I think we must reorganize and mobilize our air forces."

"All right," said General Butler. "That suits me fine. I'm a soldier and not a legislator."

A meeting of farmers' representatives was held at the public auditorium in Washington, to discuss plans and details for carrying out the government's farm program.

The appointment of the Secretary of Agriculture proved to be of general delight to the gathering.

The meeting had been in session only a short time before those in the farm organization service, due to farmers' selections and their confidence in them, were placed in the government's farm bureau to take the management helm away from the chronic bureaucrats who, for 20 years, had brought wreckage to agriculture under all Presidents.

The farm policy was well understood. The Secretary in his address to the gathering said:

As President of the United States, the late Huey Long would have undertaken a ten billion dollar drought control project, so he says in his remarkable book, "My First Days in the White House," now being published by the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

"Our plan, and the general government plan, takes care of that. I would not connect myself to this work unless it meant that much to our people."

"We will not go to these bureaus to try to teach them something about farm problems; we will be the bureau hereafter."

"We can work together now as we have, only so one will be in our way."

"Laws? There is only one law to cover it all. It is the law Moses gave us from the lips of the Lord. When it fails, I'm ready to fall with it."

"We have much building to do to make facilities ready to store our surplus products. Mind you, if we ever get very far ahead and store up enough to last while the government will use us for other work until consumption catches up with our surplus."

"But hereafter, the government will always keep a surplus, if it can get enough products to do so, in order to prepare for any emergency or distress that may threaten."

At the meeting adjourned Mr. Kennedy, Secretary of the Farmers' Union, grabbed my arm and said:

"Here, Huey, you have said so much about bureaucrats and now you have turned me into one; does that mean I cannot see you any more?"

"Not until every farmer and farm mother and farm child is happy," I answered.

"Watch us," smiled Kennedy.

(In tomorrow's Boston Evening American, Huey Long's imaginative book takes up the nation's banking problem.)

2 MORE SEEK SCHOOL POSTS

Two new candidates for the Boston school board entered the lists today.

One is Miss Miriam C. Regan of 21 Maple street, Roxbury.

Miss Regan is a graduate of Girls' High School and Purvis Law School and is affiliated with the Law Society of Massachusetts, in conjunction with the federal plan.

She has been a member of the Boston School Board since 1922.

The board of trustees appointed him president emeritus. His health was given as the reason for Dr. Baker's decision.

LOWELL PASSES UP MANSFIELD PROBE PLAN

Dr. A. Lawrence Lowell, president emeritus of Harvard, declined today the invitation of Mayor Mansfield to name a committee to judge the merits of the Mansfield administration.

Dr. Lowell's refusal was because such a committee would have no legal authority to summon witnesses, he said.

"I regret that I cannot avoid declining your request," Dr. Lowell wrote in a letter to the mayor, which said:

"I have just received your letter, with its suggestion that I should name a committee of Boston citizens, to examine into the charges of 'apparent corruption' in the various departments of the city of Boston' under your administration."

"But without legal authority to summon witnesses, and examine them under the pains and penalties of perjury, and to require documents—both from administrative officials of the city and otherwise, no such committee would be able to make any authoritative statement that there is none."

"Feeling, therefore, that such action as you suggest would be useless, I regret that I cannot avoid declining your request."

CURLEY BRINGS SULLIVAN

Massachusetts Governor Curley was commending Chairman E. Mark Sullivan of the Boston Finance Commission for his "rare wisdom" in suggesting that the people of Boston would be best served through Mayor Mansfield's resignation.

The governor also said he thought Mayor Mansfield should have consulted a psychiatrist rather than Dr. Lowell.

This comment by the Governor came when he was told about reports that Mayor Mansfield was contemplating legal steps to restrain Governor Curley from leaving Massachusetts on a trip to Honolulu.

Curley, the former Miss Mary Curley, and her husband, returned from their honeymoon world tour.

A cablegram today from Chicago informed the governor Mr. Donnelly's condition, following her appendicitis operation, had improved so that she was able to go out yesterday for the first time.

New Security Body Takes Office

Judge Emil Fuchs, former Governor Frank G. Allen and Robert W. F. of L. legislative affairs, were sworn into office today by Governor Curley as the new State Social Security Commission.

They will administer unemployment insurance and old age pensions in Massachusetts, in conjunction with the federal plan.

Judge Fuchs, chairman, received $5000 a year for six years; received $5000 a year for four years, and Allen, $5000 a year for two years.

New Move To Save Ruth Judd

By International News Service

Phoenix, Ariz., Sept. 17.—A demand for a reopening of the double trunk murder of Hedwig Samson and Agnes and John J. Bol by Winslow

Ritchie Judd, who made here shortly, T. Z. Tabasco, a private detective, I dated today.

Tabasco, who said he had been employed for the last two months by a "wealthy friend" of Judd's, claimed to have uncovered evidence which he claims will prove the convicted murderer, now in a insane asylum, had an accomplice in dismembering the bodies of her

Winnit Ruth Judd victim.

Mr. Judd's part in the murder, according to Tabasco, was "secondary to that of another woman who has been protecting for sentimental reasons."

Shortly before she was adjudged insane and while awaiting execution in a murder case at the state penitentiary, a grand jury reopened the case, but failed to find any facts unique to police.

Tabasco said "most physicians" held the opinion Mrs. Judd was not physically capable of having dismembered the bodies of the two victims.

Constitution Day

Attacks Threaten 'Dictatorship'

By JAMES F. MCENANEY

Direct and indirect attacks on the Constitution, including proposed amendments filed in Congress, threaten destruction of the Republic and inevitable dictatorship in the United States.

This warning resounded in historic Faneuil Hall today, voiced by John Henry Kirby, of Houston, Texas, at the Constitution Day exercises.

Kirby, chairman of the Southern committee to uphold the Constitution, declared the attacks on the Constitution have emanated even from President Roosevelt.

He said: "In recent months we have witnessed both direct and infernal emanations from the President of the United States, who on March 4, 1935, took a solemn oath to protect and defend that document and the liberties it guarantees."

"Not only have there been numerous indirect attacks upon the charter of our liberties but there are today pending in the Congress of the United States, proposed amendments to the Constitution, threatening the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, and otherwise changing the structure in a revolutionary manner so as to make it one of general powers."

"Should these amendments be approved by the Congress and ratified by a sufficient number of the States, the overthrow of the Republic would be complete and a dictatorship inevitable."

"This would be tyranny. Resistance to tyranny is obedience to God."

No Easter Morn

"This is the best and the oldest government that ever rose in the world to safeguard the rights and liberties of man and to promote their progress and happiness."

"If such changes do come, the forces of destruction will arise from within."

"If such changes do come, it will be because the American people have forgotten their liberties and are apathetic and indifferent."

"If this government persists, none like it will ever be created on its ruins."

"It can perish only if the instrument which has made it stand is abandoned."

"But if it is abandoned there will be no Angel of the Restoration to roll away the stone from the sepulchre of Liberty."

"There will be no Easter Morn to a controlled Constitution."

"I am a member of the political party which has been established by Thomas Jefferson, its purpose has been at all times to maintain the federal government to the full exercise and enjoyment of all powers delegated to it under the Constitution and to maintain the states in the full exercise of the powers delegated to them."

"No government ever started with as little and attained so much primacy among the nations of the earth as this one which the patriotic fathers set up under the Constitution."

"For 45 years these patriots and their sons did not permit amendments to that precious instrument although there were more than 200 proposals."

"For then as now shallow thinking brought about the misguided people arose with promises to amend the Constitution."

"All of which were defeated."

"On the heat and passion of the war between the states, the politicians added that 13, 14 and 15th Amendments, the states have been put in the Constitution by the power of bayonet and without the consent of the intelligent and patriotic people on the states."

Carnival of Waste

"After the lapse of 40 years, the 16th amendment was added, changing the taxing power that had been granted the instrument drawn by the fathers. Under that instrument the federal government could not raise taxes to direct taxation. When its revenues derived from its authority to levy indirect taxes were to be done by assessments levied upon the states according to population."

"This permitted the states to select the objects of the tax and to name the rates with which the citizens' property should be burdened."

"The 16th amendment changed all that providing that the Congress could levy taxes upon income and collect them in the states without having appointment by population."

"When that amendment was pending before the legislative of the states, its proponents declared that the power thus conferred would never be resorted to except in times of war or great public distress."

"Despite this promise, the signature of the secretary of the Congress, his proclamation declaring the 16th amendment to be a part of the Constitution."

Widow and Suitor Deny Murder

By Associated Press
Salem, N. J., Sept. 17.—A divorcee, 28, accused of murdering her husband, 32, today pleaded innocent in the slaying of her husband of eight years, Harry Y. Delbow.

A few minutes later, her childhood sweetheart, Norman Driscoll, 30, jointly indicted with her, also pleaded innocent before Justice Ralph W. D. Donaghy.

Delbow, he was crushed by a blow from a blunt instrument, was found in a barn on his farm Aug. 7 and named Justice Frank T. Neutens to preside.

HOOVER WARMS CONSTITUTION CRITICS

By Associated Press
San Diego, Cal., Sept. 17.—Former President Herbert Hoover asserted in a Constitution Day address here today that some activities of the federal government "are of the same sort of first beginnings of human rights that have taken place in other lands."

"Liberty never dies from direct attack," Mr. Hoover declared, "reviewing 10 years' experience in serving his country."

"No one will dare rise tomorrow and say he is opposed to the bill of rights," he said.

"Liberty dies from the encroachment and disregard of its safeguards."

"In our country, abdication of the responsibility and powers by Congress to the executive, the repudiation by the government of its obligations, the concentration of authority into the federal government at the expense of local government, the building up of the huge bureaucracy, the co-opting or intimidation of citizens are the same sort of first beginnings of human rights that have taken place in other lands."

"Here is the cause of anxiety and concern to the thinking citizens of the United States."

CONSTITUTION VITAL

"The principles of American liberty are embodied in the Constitution," Mr. Hoover declared.

"Our Constitution is not alone the working plan of a great federation of states under representative government. There is embodied in it also the vital principle of the American system of liberty. That system is based upon certain inalienable principles which the government will not even the government may infringe and which we call the bill of rights."

In perhaps the most outspoken words, the former President has used since he left the White House to defend his own of the fruits of revolution abroad.

He said that he was Fascist Italy, Nazi Germany, Communist Russia and their lesser followers."

"The real test is the freedom of the press is secured and distributed by propaganda. The right of criticism is denied. Men go to jail or the gallows for honest opinion. There is no right in one's savings or one's own home which the government need respect."

"There is a form of servitude, of slavery—a slipping back to the days of the slave."

HITS 'MODERNISTS'

The former President said that even in America there are many honest in their beliefs, the freedom of the individual cannot be maintained in a machine age."

"In America," he said, "where liberty is the greatest and by its glow shed light on all the others, is it not a wonder without and challenged from within. Many, in honest belief, hold that we cannot longer accommodate the growth of science to the bill of rights and our form of government."

"Men's inventions cannot be of value to man themselves. But it would be better years sacrifice something of economic efficiency than to surrender their primary liberties. In them lies a spiritual wealth of man."

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Helps Millions to Regular Habits

Millions have found Kellogg's ALL-BRAN thoroughly satisfactory for correcting constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.

In addition to its popular approval, ALL-BRAN has been accepted by science. Research shows it offers mild "bulk" in the diet. Also vitamin B and iron.

The American Medical Association Committee on Foods has granted Kellogg's ALL-BRAN its Seal of Acceptance. This delicious cereal is also approved by Good Housekeeping Institute.

Within the body, ALL-BRAN forms a soft mass which gently clears out the intestinal wastes. More effective than the "bulk" in fruit and vegetables, as it does not break down in the body.

Isn't this food better than patent medicines? Unlike cathartics, it remains effective with continued use. Two tablespoons daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal, if not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Get the end-and-green package at your grocer's. ALL-BRAN is much more satisfactory than granular products. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Prisoner of the OGPU

Terror in Penal Camps Bared

The Boston Evening American today presents the only first-hand authentic account of the Soviet penal camps of the Far North that has yet appeared in print.

George Kitchin, the author, died recently in London of complications resulting from four horrible years of privations in the camps. Kitchin whose mother was English and now lives in California, was born in Finland. He was a man of education and culture and a successful business executive with a reputation above reproach. His connections together with his Russian experience had especially fitted him for his work in Russia as the representative of an American company.

As a citizen of Finland, he was released from the penal camps through the intervention of his native country. Noteworthy in his description of the operation of the Soviet system by his absence of rancor.

CHAPTER TWO

By GEORGE KITCHIN

The following night I faced Trotsky again. I told him I would comply with his request. He jumped and made several steps about the room. He was excited and obviously pleased.

"Good!" he exclaimed. "You should have done it long ago. Well, here are three documents, all ready for you. Sign them and you will be home tomorrow."

The first document was an agreement whereby I became an informer of the OGPU. In the second I pledged secrecy concerning the first. The third was a report divulging some incriminating actions on the part of the consulate.

"As to the report, you will have to copy it in your own handwriting and sign it," said Trotsky.

There was a limit to what I had been willing to do. I had never intended to bear false witness against anybody.

I explained to Trotsky that I could not sign a report not entirely unqualified and that I could not sign such a report.

I would sign the first two papers and a report incriminating myself, but no one else.

All of this I did on one condition, only upon receipt of a postmarked message from my wife that she was safe in Finland.

"You do not need my wife," I said. "Besides, she had a young baby. You cannot arrest her anyway. The moment I receive the message from her I am at your disposal."

The all-important thing was to get my family out of the danger zone. I had laid my plan with that in view.

Arrest of Wife Threatened

As He Is Ordered Back to Cell

If my services were badly needed I would at least be entitled to ascertain the intentions regarding my wife.

Of course I had no idea whatsoever of acting as an informer. I felt that once my wife and child were safe it would be an easy matter to slip out of the country.

"Take the prisoner back to his cell," Trotsky called to his guard.

He had listened to me in silence and with a frown.

"Tomorrow morning I shall see your wife arrested also," he turned to me.

Had I unwittingly caused the arrest of my wife?

The next 48 hours were full of torment brought before Trotsky on the third morning.

For my surprise his manner was extremely pleasant. Apparently all was not yet lost.

"Listen here," he said, "I have renewed his proposal. I firmly maintained my position."

"Perhaps you distrust me personally," he said, "but I shall have to discuss the matter with my chief. It may be easier for you to settle things with me."

"And so far I have not disturbed your wife," he continued, "but beware, it will go badly with her if you persist in your obstinacy."

Then, Trotsky's superior, was present at the next examination. This time they received me cordially, asked me to sit down, offered me cigarettes and drinks.

"Game Is Lost"

We argued the matter for a long time and in the end I understood my game was lost. They did not need me at all for obtaining information, but wanted to use me for manufacturing evidence to enable them to instigate a sensational court action against the Finnish consul.

When I saw their purpose I knew that we had reached an impasse. But they did not want to give up without playing all their trumps.

Evidently they could do nothing without the consent of the Finnish consul.

After a while, however, I had a conference with my superior. Trotsky stepped to the telephone and in my presence gave the order for the arrest of my wife.

"This is your last chance to reconsider," he said, as he took the telephone off the hook.

I shook my head in refusal. I had had hope that they would try to carry out their threats. It seemed so monstrous and improbable, considering the jail.

But in another minute my hopes were dashed. A knock like a blast as a cross from the chair.

A guard entered.

"We shall see both of you yet away in prison, Trotsky, your 'brood,' snapper, Trotsky, as I left to go."

The blow they had aimed at me had struck its mark. Back to the cell my nerves were.

All night and all the next day I was in the state of mind which makes men commit suicide in the cell of the OGPU. My first husband had done.

Like a drowning man clutching at a straw, I went to the attorney-general demanding his intervention.

What answer!

"Tell us your story, comrade!" That's the court's fair-sounding order! But the OGPU has already doomed this prisoner. The judges' minds are dead. The victim pleads in vain. It's of scenes like this that George Kitchin, our old overnighter experience in Soviet Russia, writes, in his story, "Prisoner of the OGPU," published daily in the Boston Evening American.

It would be difficult for the OGPU to influence it further.

5 Months in Cell

So quietly awaited the trial. But I had a longer wait than I had expected.

I was finally brought before the examiner of the military tribunal.

He looked like a decent young man, inasmuch as I thought him to be independent of the OGPU.

I asked this opportunity to tell him all about Trotsky and how the OGPU was persecuting me.

He had already written a petition about this to the attorney-general. I said I would write to the military prosecutor, for it is not conceivable that the latter should also be working hand in glove with the officials of the OGPU.

"Let me tell you something," he said. "If you should address me directly, I would be a prosecutor, he would probably have some sense about it, but it would result only in the OGPU may follow the slightest hint handed back to it for revision."

I had studied your case and cannot conceive of your receiving a sentence exceeding a year in prison.

"Besides, the trial is very near," he said. "I am sure."

"That all legal formalities will be completed," he said, "but remember that it is the attorney-general's duty only to facilitate the inquiry."

"Accused as Spy"

Two weeks after my arrest I was handed a formal charge accusing me of espionage in behalf of the Finnish general staff and the British naval staff.

For five months I remained in solitary confinement in a cell on the "special" floor of the Shpal'skaya prison. The first month was especially hard because of the intermittent examinations, always in the middle of the night, and the constant worry about my wife and child.

I was not allowed books or newspapers, never taken out for a walk. Absolute silence was maintained on the "special" floor. I was completely isolated in my stone box, and in with me and thought.

My nerves went back on me and I could not sit down without feeling as if I were in a slaughterhouse.

But I would not give in. After the first month the regime suddenly changed. I was allowed to receive parcels from outside, was given books and newspapers, and was taken out for a walk in the prison yard.

It was due to the efforts of our counsel on my behalf.

The very first parcel brought me great relief. My wife, who had had her own experience with Soviet prisons, wrote my name with an ink-pencil on the napkin she had wrapped the food.

Another parcel Luba had very ingeniously contrived to hide a message appraising me of the fact that the consulate was fighting for me and insisting that my case be brought to trial.

If these efforts were successful, it would mean that the principle would be asserted, namely, a sentence by the board of the OGPU, reached behind my back.

My wife and child were safe in Finland. What thrill! The consul's efforts were bearing fruit.

The guard handed me a copy of an order of the OGPU transferring my case to the jurisdiction of the court. That even I had been brought before the court, advised me to plead guilty at the trial.

"Just think about it a bit," he said. "You will have plenty of time to consider my advice. In a few weeks the court of the military tribunal will take your testimony."

"If you don't plead guilty, it will go badly with you, and you will regret it."

But encouraged by the favorable turn in my affairs, I decided to ignore this advice, thinking that once my case was open, it would only further under-

Spy System

The OGPU today is probably the most feared organization in the entire world.

Millions of Soviet subjects tremble when they hear its name.

Just what is this dread organization of men, operating in the darkness of Red Russia with unlimited power to punish, terrorize, or destroy?

The OGPU is the Soviet secret police, a vast underground spy system designed to make permanent the rule of the Russian dictators.

The initials mean "Government Political Administration."

"Oh-Gay-Pay-Gay." But to Russian subjects they mean a vast, unseen institution of terror, espionage and torture.

Another chapter of George Kitchin's "Prisoner of the OGPU" will appear in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

And no one knows when the man at his elbow may prove to be an OGPU spy!

mine my weakened constitution. It was now clear to me that they were dragging out my case purposely. I came to the conclusion, however, that all necessary steps would be taken without any effort on my part.

"Now What's Up?"

The consulate would be advised of Pukil's death and this news would rouse my wife's anxiety. Since she was now in Helsinki she would immediately bring me word from the Finnish Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Ten months from the day of my arrest I was informed that my case had been removed to that of the Finnish police and was transferred to the Supreme Court.

"What are they up to now?" I pondered.

The fact that my case had been transferred to the Supreme Court meant that unusual importance was ascribed to it.

Unfortunately, it also meant that I would have to wait in prison six to 12 months longer before my trial.

A special prosecutor, Halperin, arrived from Moscow. It was clear that he was thoroughly versed in the details of my case.

He smiled when I tried to explain to him that I had been framed, and politely suggested that I address a protest to the attorney-general.

"Oh, couldn't he add, 'if you do that, it will take several more weeks before we get to me, but you have the privilege of filing such a protest.'"

"Is the ordinary course of events your case would come up for my hearing?" he asked.

"It is for you to choose."

He then proceeded to make out the examination. Toward the end he asked me whether I remembered when I had registered the names of the foreign firms I had reported.

I told him I had never registered them.

He nodded. Then he briefly finished.

TRIALS ARE CRUEL FARCES

MYSTERY MONSTER Florida Posse on Its Trail

Fort Myers, Fla., Sept. 17.—Curious fishfolk—just a little apprehensive—gathered on Estero Island today to beat the man-grove thickets along the shore in search of a strange, spotted monster.

Only one man has seen the creature so far. But that one—Lewis Reynolds of Belmo, Ala.—has a suspicious proof.

Reynolds didn't have much to say about the beast he had seen except that it was a large, spotted fish. Its head is scaled. Reynolds described the color as greenish-blue.

The picture puzzled even those who boasted the knowledge of the Florida coast.

The beast is about six feet long, and is shaped somewhat like a giant lizard. It has a row of spines down the back, and a long, pointed tail. Its head is scaled. Reynolds described the color as greenish-blue.

The picture puzzled even those who boasted the knowledge of the Florida coast.

Some ventured a guess—A Central American iguana, blown and washed across the Gulf of Mexico by the hurricanes.

Reynolds said the animal from his car last Friday. He stopped, crept close, and snapped the picture. As the camera clicked, the spotted monster plunged into the bushes and disappeared.

U. S. Balloon Safe In Bennett Race

Moscow, Sept. 17.—An American and a German balloon participating in the Gordon Bennett international balloon race landed safely in White Russia, bordering on Poland, Soviet press reports said today.

The only United States entry in the race which started Sunday from Warsaw was the "U. S. Navy" pilot, Lieutenant Raymond P. Tyler, and navigator, Lieutenant Howard P. Riva.

Opposition, Latvia, Sept. 17. (U.S.)—A balloon was killed and its companion injured when one of thirteen craft in the Gordon Bennett international balloon race crashed in a swamp near Kemeri, Latvia.

Wast nation the balloons were seen was not immediately learned.

'Let Me Call You Sweetheart' Wins $5 Bill

Many people will agree with M. Bassett of Framingham that the last Congress—which found time to spend ten thousand million dollars—should have done the following version of their theme song, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

For his parody the Framinghamer won the daily $5 prize. Here it is:

Let us call you Sweetheart! In our hand-shaking story, We said you down the river? With a cherry song and smile.

Just keep on voting for us While our master cracks the whip; Then watch your little "play-boys" Jump the tax-truck, sinking ship.

Send in your version of the Congressional theme song to "Congressional Contest Editor," Boston Evening American. YOU may win the daily $5 prize for the best verse!

Boston, 305 Today, Will Give Party

Boston is three hundred and fifty years old today.

In honor of such longevity a birthday party including group singing, pageantry and oratory is scheduled to take place on the Common, which is celebrating its tercentenary.

Canon Malcolm Cook, vicar of St. Botolph's church, Boston, Lincolnshire, England, here as an ambassador of good-will, is to take prominent part in the extensive exercises.

The radio will also have an important part to play in the celebration.

The wind-up of the radio program will come when Boston, Massachusetts, choruses sing "America" and Boston, England, simultaneously, will sing "God Save the King."

John F. Fitzgerald, former mayor, will give an address on the subject: "Boston Day Boston's Duty to the Past."

The pageantry will depict scenes from the founding and early life of the city.

Arrangements for the celebration are being made by the Boston Common Tercentenary committee.

SHERMAN GOES ON TRIAL FOR LIFE MONDAY

Worcester, Sept. 17.—In a series of moves today District Attorney Owen A. Hoban today prepared for trial of Everett F. Sherman, charged with the canoe-murder of the wife.

Sherman is scheduled for trial Monday.

Seventy-year-old Esther Magill of Whitinsville, named shortly after the drowning of Allen Dudley Sherman in Lake Singletary, as the wife whose affection Sherman sought to win by the death of his wife, was summoned to Hoban's office today.

Hoban indicated some time ago that he would probably not call the Magill girl as a witness.

Sherman, meanwhile, has been examined as to his sanity by the state's experts and pronounced sane.

It was charged that on the night of July 20 Sherman, knowing that his wife could not swim, took her for a canoe ride in Lake Singletary, in Sutton, and deliberately upset the canoe with the intention of drowning her.

He was arrested when his story of her drowning, and his attitude, aroused the suspicion of a police officer.

Sherman made an alleged confession following threats that "truth serum" would be employed in his questioning.

GAS RATE BOOST PROTESTED

Protests of 5000 women against the proposed increase in rates to small-consumer customers of the Boston Consolidated Gas Co. were recorded at the State House today.

Their signatures appeared on a petition objecting to the proposed sliding scale under consideration of the Public Utilities Commission.

A hearing on the proposed rates continued before the commission.

The petition, presented by Mrs. Eva Hoffman of Dorchester, stated that the signers will be unable to pay higher rates.

The suspension of the hearing saw but 15 interested persons before the commission.

Representative Thomas Dorgan of Dorchester charged that the gas company, by asking for the new rates, was "shadow boxing" in an attempt to stave off pressure for a lower charge to consumers.

Alderman John F. Foster of Boston urged the commission to act aside the proposed schedule for a year, but this suggestion was opposed by Attorney Carl D. Bowman of East Boston, representing the Eagle Hill Tenants Association.

Bowman called for a "showdown" once and for all.

Joseph Jacobs, for the Roxbury Workers Club, told the commission that if the new rates are allowed many workers would remove gas meters.

Portland, Me., Sept. 17.—A jury of 11 men and one woman, chosen in 30 minutes today to try the case of Mary E. Morrill, 52, on a murder charge, visited the shack where she allegedly killed her husband with an axe last June.

As 14 of 65 witnesses on hand were called and questioned, Mrs. Morrill, dressed in the same black hat, black dress, and cloth coat she wore when arrested, sat in the prisoner's dock.

Her 11-year-old son, James, brought here from Massachusetts where he had been cared for since his father's death, is to be called as a state witness.

From the child, County Attorney Walter M. Tapley Jr. hoped to obtain evidence to substantiate the state's claim that the slaying was premeditated.

The sole woman on the jury was Mrs. Clara Flavin, Portland housewife and mother of three children.

Defense counsel Harry E. Nixon has indicated he will make self-defense Mrs. Morrill's chief claim of innocence.

Springfield, Sept. 17.—Three persons were seriously injured today in an explosion that occurred when two of them forced their way into the gas-filled home of the third.

Mrs. Barbara McHenry, 58, in whose home in Maynard street the explosion took place, is suffering from gas inhalation and burns.

Gas was flowing from several open barrels in the kitchen.

Richard A. Berryman, 27, co-occupant of the second floor apartment, and Mrs. Winnie Dodge, 58, who lives next door, forced an entrance on the telephone instruction of Mrs. McHenry's husband, Harold. They had notified him at his business that they smelled gas seeping from his apartment.

The explosion occurred when oxygen rushed into the gas-filled kitchen and the fumes were ignited by a pilot light.

McHenry told police his wife was in poor health.

"What's a Poor Girl to Do?"

ELAINE BARRIE MRS. EDNA JACOBS
It's all very difficult for poor Elaine (Jacobs) Barrie, erstwhile protégée of "genius" John Barrymore. Here she is with her mother in their New York apartment, from which her actor-benefactor is alleged to have stalked in a huff—taking her gifts of jewelry away from her.

BYRD NIPS 'RACKET'

Rear-Admiral Richard E. Byrd has no fur to sell.

But Albert Burton Creagh, a former second cook on one of the Byrd Antarctic expeditions, is alleged to be touring the country on a "lecture circuit" which turns out to be a fur-selling racket, Byrd claims.

And, worst of all, there are no furs.

Byrd asked the aid of the federal authorities when he received a letter from Philadelphia, where Creagh gave a talk on the lookout for America and then took $2000 in deposits on Byrd furs, police declared.

Creagh gives no recipes.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the government bureau, is circulating the police of the nation, warning them to be on the lookout for the inspired cheat, and when they catch him to turn him over to the government.

LIFER BOLES, 71, ASKS FREEDOM

Pleading for "a little sunshine in my few remaining days," Henry Boles, 71, formerly of Brooklyn, a "veteran" today appeared before the state board of pardons and paroles at the State Prison on a petition for his freedom.

In 1904 Boles shot and killed his wife and Patriman Joseph Murray of the Brooklyn police while, he claimed, he was intoxicated.

Opposing the parole today were Police Chief Allen Rutherford of Brooklyn, representing the widow of the slain officer; Judge Philip Parker of the Brooklyn court, representing the trust fund raised for the widow of the officer, and District Attorney Edmund L. Dewing.

In favor of the parole was Warden Francis W. Laagan and Michael Boles, brother of the convict.

Genial Bandit Hands Back 'Change' Cash

By Associated Press
Swanton, Sept. 17.—The early morning trade in a Fall River lunchroom was innoventenced not at all today, thanks to the thoughtfulness of a robber who was not greedy.

Twirling a pistol and wearing a handkerchief over his face, the robber, police reported, informed William Thorp, counterman, a hold-up was in progress and to hand over the money.

Thorp emptied the cash drawer of approximately $10 and passed it over the counter.

In response to a suggestion from Thorp that he could not conduct business without some change, the gunman passed back all the nickels and dimes, about two dollars, and then departed.

Inseparable Twins Killed by Auto

By Associated Press
Cleveland, Sept. 17.—William and George Buellow, twins, went through 59 years of life together, dressing alike, eating alike, working at the same jobs. Today they were united in death.

The brothers were walking along a road in Middleburg Heights when an auto struck and killed them instantly.

Blanchard, Lym Builder, Dies

Stricken with a heart ail while supervising construction of a new school in Lynn, Ernest Blanchard, 80, of Pitts River, Swampscott, died later at his home today.

Mr. Blanchard became well known times and asked an assistant to take over his work for the day he drove to Swampscott and was barely inside his home when he died.

New Army Airship On Test Flight

By Associated Press
Scott Field, Ill., Sept. 17.—The "T. C. 34," described by army officials as the largest non-rigid airship in the world, went aloft today for its first test flight.

The giant balloon, with overall dimensions of 54 by 233 feet, is powered by three air-cooled engines. A maximum speed of 90 miles per hour is expected.

VANE TRAPPED BY CROSSING OF TRAILS

They hadn't met in years. One man was from Indiana, the other from Massachusetts. When last they had met it was in Florida. This time Donald G. Davis, 22-year-old grocerman, had business in Louisville, Kentucky, broker's office.

And there he met, face to face, Francis L. Vane, 48-year-old secretary of John Shepard, Jr., who had been the object of a nation-wide search for months. Vane said: "Do me a favor and say nothing about this."

But Davis told authorities: "I knew there was $1000 reward offered by Mr. Shepard, and I decided I had better notify police before someone else did." That ironic crossing of trails was responsible today for Vane being in the hands of authorities, charged with theft of $25,000 worth of negotiable securities from the Boston merchant whose trusted employee he had been for years.

ADMITS GUILT, POLICE SAY
Vane, according to police, admits his guilt. They quoted him: "I don't know why I did it." "The man's wife was with him, but she was innocent, he protested. He begged police to keep the attractive young woman 'out of it.' The pair had vanished from the Shepard estate in Lexington, June 13. Mrs. Vane has been a personal maid for Mrs. Shepard.

Vane had since been living the life of a secluded housewife in Pewee Valley, a quiet little suburb of Louisville.

TOOK ANOTHER NAME
Under an assumed name, that of Charles Harrison, he had been doing some cautious trading in a small brokerage house. He had been making money, police said. Some $17,000 worth of the allegedly stolen bonds had been cashed, but still Charles Harrison was free, living in Pewee Valley. And then Davis had to cross the Ohio river and he had to go directly to the office where Vane was, and he had to go there. Just at the hour Vane was there. And they hadn't met in years. The last time was in Palm Beach, Fla.

Human Side of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

For the glory and prestige of "Made in England" motors, Sir Malcolm Campbell drives a monstrous automobile over a mile of hard salt in Utah at a speed of more than three hundred miles an hour.

Nothing on land ever had traveled so fast. For the first time money of $6750 and the Thompson Trophy, young Harold Gattyman drives an airplane through the skies above Cleveland for 350 miles at a rate of 320 miles an hour.

The mortality rate for speed records is high. Month in and month out, the old gives place to the new.

What is the limit to speed? The British flier, A. H. Ormer, who captained a Schneider Cup race, says: "If somebody will design the engine, there is nothing in the human element to prevent airplanes reaching a speed of 1,000 miles an hour. Flying at high speeds is a wonderful sensation, but there is a much bigger thrill in logging and calculating."

Science puts a question mark alongside of this and any other prediction of 1,000 miles an hour speed. Ten miles a minute, or 600 miles an hour, is about the best that man can expect through the atmosphere.

A French authority, discussing airplanes, says: "We should experiment at whatever takes in high altitudes where there is little air resistance to be overcome." And then what will be the speed? Six hundred miles an hour? Ten, almost at the outset.

But a theoretic limit appears. Whatever the motor, even in an absolute void, the flier can never make a speed in excess of half the velocity of his own engine. That is the principle of the rocket. Let us put this exhaust speed at 800 feet a second. This will give to the ideal rocket airplane a limit speed of 134 miles per hour.

FICARD PAYS WAY
Man is making his first ventures into the stratosphere. The Russian scientist, F. I. Ficar, paved the way in his balloon. The Russian followed him, our army intended to go up, and the late Wiley Post was counting on being the first man to drive an airplane in the regions beyond the atmosphere.

It is hardly more than a matter of time before the stratosphere becomes the highway for international and transoceanic travel at bewildering speed. Maybe 20 years from now, or 50, at the most, it will be an overnight jump from New York.

110 CADETS WELCOMED FROM 11,000-MILE CRUISE

One hundred and ten cadets of the Massachusetts Nautical School ship Nantuxet yahoed themselves into port today, completing a training trip of 11,000 miles, which took them to half a dozen European ports.

They brought canaries from the Canary Islands—sharks' teeth from a ten footer they caught near the Azores—a healthy tan after four months at sea, a baseball victory over a London nine, and a great wish that "exams" were over for their graduation aboard ship Sept. 24.

Captain Clarence Abels, U. S. N., retired, in charge of the cruise, said after the ship docked at the Navy Yard in Charlestown today.

"This has been a most successful cruise. The men have had practical training and the broadening experience of travel that will fit them for maritime careers."

The Nantuxet left Boston May 21, and has visited England, Gibraltar, Spain, Morocco and Bermuda. More than a hundred relatives and friends were at the dock to greet the cadets. Preparations are being made for a "graduation" Sept. 24.

Only one untoward incident marred the voyage, the death at Gibraltar of a heart attack of a cadet, a pharmacist's mate Edward F. Condon, of Canton.

Victims Sentence Wife-Beaters

By Associated Press
Swainsboro, Ga., Sept. 17.—Judge Alfred Herrington, Jr., of the Swainsboro city court, in letting women pronounce their own judgments in wife-beating cases.

The first woman to do so gave her husband the maximum sentence, 12 months at hard labor.

"Henceforth, it shall be my rule to let the wife suggest the sentence and I will make that the judgment of the court."

A 50-year-old Negro farmer, who pleaded guilty, was the first to feel the effect of the plan.

Egypt Is Home, But This Babe's a Yankee.

Leaving Boston to return to Egypt, home of her husband and herself, is this former Malden girl, now Mrs. Enrico Nahum of Cairo. With her is her youngest child, Jeanna Lorraine, born here because her mother wanted her to be an American citizen.

Once before early in 1934, Mrs. Nahum made the same 6000-mile trip to that Jeanna's sister, Ruth Phyllis, could have the same privilege.

$25,000 BAIL IN NURSE ATTACK

Pitchburg, Sept. 17.—Bail of $25,000 held George E. Toussaint, 26, for hearing today upon his arraignment in district court, charged with attacking Miss Patricia Hayes, 26, Burbank Hospital nurse.

Toussaint pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity and liquor.

Police found Miss Hayes, unconscious, in a closet in Toussaint's home. She is now a patient, in serious condition, at the hospital where she is employed.

Authorities are trying to locate Toussaint's wife, with whom Miss Hayes is acquainted. She is reported to have left him a week ago.

The nurse is reported to have flown to the home on being told Mrs. Toussaint wanted her present at an emergency operation.

OLD DRUM'S FIRST MONTH'S QUOTA 1,200,000 QUARTS

RELAY, MD., Sept. 16th.—An unprecedented flood of "rush" orders for Old Drum Brand Blended Whiskey is taxing the tremendous bottling and shipping facilities of plant Maryland Distillery to the limit.

Distilled from the same "premium" grain used for the most expensive whiskeys, Old Drum is revolutionizing America's taste conception of popularly priced whiskeys.

Inviting the nation to taste the difference, smell the difference, and pocket the difference, Old Drum's distillers challenge the public to compare Old Drum with any straight or blended whiskey in the 4- and 6-pint class.

"Once you taste this great blend," they say, "you'll agree with thousands of others that, for a really 'drinkable' whiskey at a 'cents-a-bottle' price, you can't beat Old Drum!"

Mr. Boston Agawam Purses $222,500

By Jack Conway

SPEAKING OF news: Col. Dave Egan tells me there will be $222,500 in purses at Agawam which opens October 1. The big race of the meeting will take place Columbus Day when the class of the mules will clash. King Saxon may be a starter.

I found Lou Smith in front of the Administration Building at Rockingham Park. Looking forward to a successful Fall meeting, but not forgetting the Agawam meeting.

"Many of the horsemen will ship their horses to Agawam," said Smith. "It is because they like the way Jim Munroe shapes up a racing card. We are always able to get plenty of entries."

Low plans to hop into New York next week to see the Joe Louis-Max Baer bout. Horse racing is a new business, losing his pleasure, Joe Cochran informs me they are going to lose Mickey Cochran a grand party at the Agawam track. Cochran used to commute between Bridgewater and Boston when he was attending Boston University.

Cochran's big job for the past three weeks has been to keep his Tiers from getting so over confident that they would let down.

WAR EAGLE

I HAD a visit from War Eagle, full blooded Indian wrestler, who opposes Ted Germaine of South Boston in a finish bout, last two falls out of three, at a Charley Gordon show at Mechanics Building tonight.

War Eagle was at one time coach of wrestling at Colgate, and taught the rugged Charley Clark the fundamentals of the mat game.

The Peabody House for Crippled Children will receive 15 per cent of the receipts of the show. Wrestling has done more than his share for worthy charities.

The Volunteers of America received $200 as their share of the receipts of the recent O'Mahoney-George bout.

Charley Gordon likes Battle Rourke, and will feature another of these knock down and drag out affairs in his preliminary card tonight.

BROUILLARD

Luc Brouillard has a rather simple plan of battle for his round bout with Al McCoy at the Garden on Friday night. He intends to force the issue from the start, and is confident that his barrage of punches will catch up with McCoy in the sixth or seventh round.

I have a new betting system. In the fourth race at the Rockingham opening, there were six favorites. Alon's was a heavily backed favorite with odds of $2.50 on the race. Of course I was rooting for Charley Egan, the outside horse in the betting.

DAVISCOURT

DICK DAVISCOURT has come to the parting of the ways with youthful Dan O'Mahoney. He says he took this action for "private reasons."

The break started at Wondeland Park, Pevers, on Labor Day. Daviscourt was training with O'Mahoney. Danno took Dick's leg and twisted it around the latter's shoulder. Daviscourt was of little value to Danno during the remainder of the training period.

The Irishman uses his sparring partners roughly. He pays them big money and expects them to take hard usage as part of the day's work. He does not object to anything they may do to him.

Daviscourt said he will later seek revenge. I don't believe Danno will run away from Daviscourt any body else.

With free-fall rules, the Irishman was a nut. He said there was such a thing as a "kneepunch." Get the Boston Evening American on Fight Special at once.

By next Monday's drawdown ticket agency will be getting $100 for front row tickets to the Louis-Baer fight. Who said there was such a thing as a "kneepunch." Get the Boston Evening American on Fight Special at once.

HARLOW PICKS 2 TEAMS TO BUILD NEW OFFENSE

AIDES Take Over 102 SUBS DANVERS SOPH AT GUARD

The first indications of progress in Harvard's football experiment were noted this morning when Head Coach Dick Harlow handpicked two eleven for personal instructions.

He turned over the remaining 102 candidates to his trusted assistants and settled into the very important task of founding an offense.

The former Western Maryland athletic director was careful enough not to include all the surviving 1934 regulars on one team, to avoid any thought that he had already jockeyed a variety.

He has asserted that every candidate on the squad is starting from scratch. It is his intention to forego a cut until next Monday, when college coaches will be present.

End Shifted

Among the candidates who took part in spring practice was Jim Gaffney, a freshman and from Danvers High School. Gaffney, today, was cited as one of the first four guards on the variety squad, having been shifted by Harlow during the informal spring period.

The two eleven selected by Harlow this morning contained a majority of the experienced members of last year's variety and freshman eleven, and from them it would not be a difficult task to enumerate a starting eleven for Harvard's opening engagement of the season on October 5.

The two eleven lined up as follows:

TEAM A
Player, Position Ht. Wt.
Emil Duhel, L. 175 170
William Burton, L. 185 185
Charles Allen, L. 190 190
Samuel Green, L. 190 190
Thomas B. Hubbard, R. 190 190
Robert R. Watson, L. 190 190
Edmund F. Ingalls, L. 190 190
William J. Watt, R. 190 190
Fred Mowley, L. 190 190
Donald Jackson, R. 190 190

TEAM B
Player, Position Ht. Wt.
Robert C. Downes, L. 190 190
Graham Spring, L. 190 190
James Gaffney, L. 190 190
Robert Jones, L. 190 190
Charles Keeler, L. 190 190
Henry Adla, L. 190 190
Chas. Butler, L. 190 190
Capt. Robert A. B. 190 190
Edmund F. Ingalls, L. 190 190
Gordon Freely, L. 190 190
Vernon Stuart, L. 190 190

Big Teams

The statistics of the two eleven show possibilities of Harlow fielding two big, fast, powerful machines in any game on the Crimson schedule, for there are several members of last year's variety squad who came from these two combinations.

The formation of the two teams plus the fact that the line men enjoyed their first taste of action, contact work this morning indicates a scrimmage at Soldiers Field within the next 48 hours. Harlow held an intense assignment drill for two full hours on the Crimson's new dummy machine before going quiet, with a warning that more of the same was due this afternoon.

Hole-in-One Tourney Opens on 30th

Five tries at fame and fortune. This is the opportunity offered by the Boston American and Sunday Advertiser in the promotion of their fourth annual Hole-in-one Golf Tournament.

Every man and woman, girl and boy who fills out the entry blank which is printed on this page will be given five shots to win the prize.

The tournament is scheduled to open Monday, Sept. 30, and the hole which has been selected for the test is a special hole at the Franklin Park course.

The hole, a 115 yard affair, has been specially prepared for the tourney by the Boston Park Department, and is officially known as the 115th hole.

The game connected with the tourney? Well, the vast majority of New England's outstanding golfers annually enter, and since an "ace" is considered an extremely fortunate occurrence, it is distinctly possible that you may have the honor of bettering the golf offerings of some of America's best talented links stars. Just one shot "put up there" may win the tourney.

The "fortune" Your Boston American and Sunday Advertiser is planning several splendid trophies for the winners.

Gigantic prizes have already been selected for the winners in the women's and men's divisions, silver medals are being prepared for the second and third prizes, and it is expected that other awards will be chosen before the trophy list is definitely announced.

Now don't forget, folks. The tourney is open to all.

Just fill out the special "Hole-in-one" blank appearing on this page, and mail to the "Hole-in-one" editor, Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser, 5 Wintrop square, Boston, Mass.

DANNO Pins Savoldi IN 32.36

Chicago, Sept. 17 (U.S.)—Dan O'Mahoney, Ireland, three times world champion, today won the Dan Danno Heavyweight Wrestling Championship by pinning the former Boston Dams footballer in 32 minutes and 36 seconds.

They met in the main event, scheduled 30-minute, one-fall, time limit, of a wrestling program, staged by Jim Mullen and Lane Lewis, which opened the fall season at the Chicago stadium.

Chief Edna Wolf, full-blooded American Indian from Trinidad, Col., pinned Emil Duss, Omaha, Nebraska, and one of the seven wrestling brothers in the semi-main event.

Chicago, Sept. 17 (U.S.)—With a crowd of less than 800 looking on, the Pirates defeated the Boston Braves, 5 to 3.

Gus Suhr set a new National League record for taking part in the most consecutive games, running his string to six. The old record of six was held by Eddie Shaw, former Brooklyn and Boston player.

Pittsburgh, Sept. 17 (U.S.)—With a crowd of less than 800 looking on, the Pirates defeated the Boston Braves, 5 to 3.

Gus Suhr set a new National League record for taking part in the most consecutive games, running his string to six. The old record of six was held by Eddie Shaw, former Brooklyn and Boston player.

With cove, Bob Haley, who will lead Harvard into action this season. Bob is shown cutting some fancy figures in an open field as Harlow launched its football practice.

DANNO Mechanics Card To Use Tomahawk HOLD TONIGHT

Chief War Eagle, Iroquois Indian, will be permitted to use his famous "Tomahawk Death Blow" tonight, when he meets Ted Germaine in the main bout at Mechanics Building, as Bill Dolan, promoter, has decided.

Germaine can also use any holds within reason. The Peabody House for Crippled Children will receive a share of tonight's receipts.

With no fouls permitted tonight, and with the famous Indian on the war path, both for Germaine and his manager, Jack O'Leary, there will probably be plenty of fireworks.

Promoter Gordon has lined up a strong surrounding card, including Jim Marquette, the French Ace, who meets Bill Curry, and the famous Tony Patalino, a Battie Royal that should stand the test on the edge of their chairs.

Joe Turpo, 194, heavy champion, has offered his services for the occasion, and will meet Oscar Holmberg of Fordham University, in a special bout to a positive finish.

30,000 See Cubs Rout Giants, 8-3

By Universal Service
Chicago, Sept. 17.—Chicago's belated pennant drive continued as the clanking Cubs crushed the New York Giants, 8-3, extending their winning streak to 13 games and maintaining their two-game lead over the St. Louis Cardinals in the curling flag race.

The game was the first of an important four-game series, and sent the Giants four and a half games behind the Cubs and two and a half behind the Cards. The standing:

Team	Won	Lost	P. C.
Chicago	11	5	.688
St. Louis	8	5	.615
New York	8	5	.615

The Giants' stranded Wright Field heartened by three straight victories over the Cardinals but the Cubs, trailing by one run in the fourth, drove home three runs over an aching barrage that netted them an 8-3 rout.

Frank Zieber and Gus Mancuso, with three hits each, were War Eagle's chief annoyances.

Another eight-pounder will find Honey Metcalf of Charleston, who is training for a bout with Sammy Fuller, today against Lou Hardesty, Dan Carroll's latest addition to his stable from Philadelphia.

Jack Sharkey will introduce his new heavyweight find, Frank Bally, who will be pitted against Rocky Kossers of Quincy. In another second-bout, Johnny Stange of Charleston faces Al McCoy's tabbies. In the Carletons of Waterville, Me., while in the opening bout of the night, Sammie Fournier, the young prospect, Danie Yanetti of Chelsea, clashes with Stanley Morris of Brockton.

MAINE Roots For McCOY

COMING DOWN FOR FIGHT

By Sam Cohen
Al McCoy and Lou Brouillard, who clash in the feature 10-round bout at the Goodwin A. C. boxing arena at the Garden Friday evening, will be well supported by their native friends when they climb into the ring.

Dave Aratta, ticket chief for the Goodwin A. C. reports that he has received a number of reservation requests from Worcester fight fans who have always supported Brouillard, while Maine is coming down in a body to root for McCoy. The latter now lives in Boston but started his career in Portland.

The Pine Tree Staters haven't forgotten what Brouillard did to Ad Zachow, who lost to him, and hopes to get revenge for their keen disappointment when McCoy meets Brouillard.

Incidentally Brouillard has been working out with Zachow at Buckley's gymnasium where Jack Sharkey, former heavyweight champion of the world, has taken a hand into getting him ready for the battle.

Tiger Smith, one of Joe Louis' sparring partners, was also imported by the McCoy camp when Al ran out of local boxing mates. The card has been completed for this show. In the eight-round semifinal Clayton Bettington of Dorchester, who has scored a straight K. O. Steve Carr in his last bout here.

TIGER GALAXY COST LITTLE

UNLIKE Red Sox, YANKS

YET THEY'RE CHAMPS

By Joe Cashman

What worth a fat bank-roll in baseball?

Marce Tom Yawkey has plenty of cause to ask himself this question if he ever stops to think what it cost to put together the champion Detroit Tigers, who are now engaging his costly Red Sox at the Fens.

GET 'EM YOUNG

Tommy Bridges, curveball king who hung up his 24th win of the season against the Sox in the Monday tilt, was picked out of the University of Tennessee by Scout Billy Doyle.

The famed "Shoebout" Brown stepped from school to the Beaumont club of the Texas League, a Tiger farm.

From the same farm came Pete Fox and Jojo White, outfield flashes, both of whom were originally acquired for insignificant sums at Evansville in the Old Three League.

Edlan Acker, submarine hurler, came up from Beaumont after being in Detroit and Mobile, so it certainly didn't take very long to feel off the Detroiters.

The reliable "Goose" Goslin came from the same source, but change for Jack Stone, who was another of Scout Doyle's college finds.

The ancient but still very effective Alvin Creender was picked up on waivers from the Senators.

Eddie Casey, home run king at St. Paul, cost what a player who had failed to make his way out of Detroit.

THE KNEE TO THE REDSKIN SITUATION

CUBS MAKE IT 13 BEAT GIANTS, 8-3

WILSON, BOWERS SOX STARS

By Joe Cashman

They all look alike to the Cubs.

After ranning up 12 straight wins at the expense of the Phils, Braves and Dodgers, the present National League leaders made it 13 in a row by taking the opener of a crucial four-game series with the Giants by the decisive score of 8 to 3.

The galling Grimsa didn't add to their two-game lead by the victors as the second-place Cardinals nipped the Dodgers 1-0, but they did pull 4 1/2 games away from the Giants.

Louise Warkentel held the Terriers in check while the Cubs pounded Graham, Gabel and Stout for a dozen apiece.

Paul Dean, whose absence, due to a heart attack, was keenly felt by the Cards in their game with the Giants, returned to back the Dodgers.

The "Gas House" game made only five hits off Van Mungo but bunched three of them in the first frame for a run, while the Dodgers' pitcher, the equalizer of the six blows they collected off "Duff".

The late-season showing of Jack Wilson and "Star" Bowers, young Sox pitchers, is most encouraging.

Wilson held the Tigers scoreless in six of the seven innings he worked against them, and Bowers, coming back after nine-inning winning effort on Saturday, held the champions hitless and fanned three in the last two frames.

No more thrilling catches have ever been seen at the Fens than those turned in by Mel Almada to rob "Goose" Goslin and Gerry Walker of extra-base blows in the first.

The Mexican pygmyballer in the field, who has been caught the ball with his feet off the ground and his hands extended to the limit over his head.

One of the Sox errors was a perfect throw to third by Oscar Melillo which landed in the Tiger bench because Billy Werber wasn't at his post.

The third sacker was half way down the line toward the plate to be in position to cut off a throw from leftfield where Billy Rogie had just landed on Johnson's foot.

League Leaders LANDIS Holds Series PLAN PARLEY

By Associated Press

Chicago, Sept. 17.—Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis was host today at his annual party to discuss plans for the World Series.

Four National League clubs with a mathematical chance or better of getting into the classic, the Cubs, Cardinals, Giants and Pirates, had been invited to send representatives. Detroit and the Yankees, only club with a chance of overtaking the Tigers, were the Junior League's delegates.

Will Harridge, president of the American League, and Ford Frick, National League head, also were here for the discussion.

How tickets will be sold, ticket prices, whether they shall again be a commercial broadcast, and player eligibility were the problems to be decided.

LEWIS HANEY ON STOCK MARKET

Despite Irregularity AVERAGES SHOW Fractional Gains

By Lewis Haney, Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, Sept. 17.—Despite irregularity, the stock market last week showed a fractional gain in the averages, which is fully as much as most observers anticipated. Probably a majority of stocks were either slightly off or about unchanged, but the most active issues continued to make gains. These included the motors, copper and certain rails. The outstanding performances, considering volume, were three point rises in Chrysler and Great Northern, and a 1 1/2 point increase in Amstar.

Among the major groups of stocks, the "industrials" (despite the "high" action of certain leaders) were firm, after early strength, mostly turned reactionary after Wednesday. The "utilities" were mostly on the weak side all week, and the one very active stock which showed a loss in the market was Columbia Gas and Electric.

The volume of trading was large, and above that of the preceding week, but it subsided sharply during the last three days when the market showed declines.

Corporate bonds closed about unchanged. Government issues, however, sagged persistently.

In my opinion, the market position is sound enough to make any large declines improbable, and to insure that the rise will be resumed before long.

While there are enough uncertainties to keep one from being dogmatic, the probability seems to be that stocks will "consolidate" their positions without undergoing a severe reaction at present.

A good many observers remained doubtful last week, and some were bearish. Some point to the long, uninterrupted rise. Others note signs of increased public participation, and particularly the increase in brokers' loans during the past two weeks, all others do not like certain indications of manipulation, and the logical reasons given for advances—such as the "breathing spell" action.

Premier Laval's stand with England for the League seems to increase the probability that no general war conflagration will occur, which puts a damper on "war stocks" and commodities. At the same time, renewed weakness in the Dutch guilder reminds us of the precarious position of the "gold bloc."

Back of all this distrust of the New Dealers, for more and more business men are beginning to realize the fundamental threat to business which the New Deal involves, and there is no certainty that courts can act decisively until after the next election.

But the action of the market hardly warrants a bearish position. The most active stocks are those which rise. The volume of selling has not been much above the buying, and on the whole volume has fallen on weakness. The market has only just broken through important July-August resistance, and some irregularity and "consolidations" are usual at such a point.

Maybe there has been some selling of the "leaders" under cover of strength in metals, rails and miscellaneous, but I note neither U. S. Steel nor General Motors acts badly. Both backed away a little after penetrating upper resistance, but came back Saturday and closed well up in the day's range. Both would get support just a little lower.

More fundamentally, the business outlook is mostly favorable enough to warrant some discounting of increased earnings. This provides, for the time being, an element of greater certainty, which makes the abnormally low level of money rates more effective.

It seems to me that the situation somewhat resembles that of August, 1924. As long as stock values continue high compared with money rates (and hopes of eventually defeating the New Deal's ends), the general trend of the market is likely to remain upward.

I can't get very enthusiastic about railway or railway equipment shares, but am inclined to favor selected non-ferrous metal, department store and steel issues at present."

CURB Stocks BETTER

LEADERS SHOW FAIR GAINS

New York, Sept. 17.—A few curb issues showed improved action, but the general swing toward recovery following yesterday's decline.

During the early trading firmness characterized such leaders as Electric Bond & Share, International Petroleum, Sunshine Mining and Sherwin Williams.

The two most moderately lower in American Gas & Electric, Gulf Oil, Hiram Walker, and Pioneer Oil. Singer Manufacturing and Duke Power scored sharp gains on odd lot transfers.

Big Turnover In Wool

The big turnover of wool in the Boston market gained momentum last week, and houses affiliated with Woolmark, Sunshine Mining Committee sold $100,000 pounds.

This total was exceeded in only two weeks last May, prior to the Scheuch decision, when activity was at a record prewar level.

Wool prices were firm and the so-called "approved" group are included, total volume was appreciated at between $100,000 and $150,000 pounds.

As wool is being grown at a rate around 700,000,000 pounds weekly, current sales are well over double the normal.

Prices continued to firm, with firm wool grown both in the east and in the west advancing very close to 80 cents, secured basis.

Wool tops were also in big demand, and advanced about three cents a pound in Boston, with an even greater advance in the country runners.

NEW ENGLAND

Business ACTIVITY Rising

By Hugh E. Bradshaw
Current improvement in New England business activity suggests that June marked the low point for the usual summer recession.

The index compiled by the New England Council dropped from 81.2 in June to 78.2 in July, and the explanation for July's relative jump to 80.8. With more realistic figures for August and September, the results indicate an upswing in business activity. The index is in contrast with 1934, when a sharp decline took place in April through June, and it took a part of the fall for business to get up momentum. It is unusual in a recovery like in January of 1934.

But there is one angle of the New England business situation that is particularly disconcerting to the migration of textile machinery. Statistics recently published show a continuous loss of textile machinery. While New England loses a considerable amount of textile machinery, it gains a considerable amount of textile machinery. This is a sound basis for the argument that once American textile machinery is under the processing tax, it is under the processing tax, it is under the processing tax, it is under the processing tax.

Sideline: Retail is in line for the New England business situation and exporting nation of the world. And what would be the result of the development of the textile industry? It is a sound basis for the argument that once American textile machinery is under the processing tax, it is under the processing tax, it is under the processing tax, it is under the processing tax.

Students on rail shares are still worried in the financial district. In our opinion, it is wrong to be worried today. It is wrong to be worried today. It is wrong to be worried today. It is wrong to be worried today.

Price: And add to the above, we see much more of current levels. Of interest to technicians in the current market, the Dow-Jones 30 rail index is making. An acceleration of the market is well along and something in the next few months a definite break-out in the market of the other is certain.

Friday should be most cheerful. It should favor those constructively inclined toward the group. It will not alter our fundamental market position.

ADVICE on LOVE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX and NELL BRINKLEY

He Can't Figure Her Out at All

Dear Miss Fairfax:

After going with a certain girl for four years I was given my walking papers.

For a long time pride kept me from trying to see her. When I did see her, I learned she was going "steady" with someone else, seeing him five nights a week. She acted as though she will be willing to give me the other two evenings.

I told her of my love and was repulsed. On my last date with her she was very sweet, and I made another date. When I called for her, her mother told me she had gone out. Don't you think that she should write and give me some sort of explanation about this?

CRUSHED.

Good manners require there should be some explanation for a broken date, whether true or a polite fabrication. This affair of yours with the young lady, with whom you went for four years, doesn't look very hopeful to me. As she is going out five nights a week "steady," it looks as if he were the preferred suitor.

However, for your comfort, let me remind you that girls sometimes change.

HE HAS GONE AWAY FOR SIX MONTHS

Dear Miss Fairfax:

About three weeks ago I promised a certain girl that I would go "steady" with him. Now he has gone away for six months. Do you think I should still wait every night, doing nothing for six months, or would it be all right for me to go out with other boys until he comes back?

Unless this boy is a regular Othello for jealousy, I do not think he would expect you to sit around twiddling your thumbs for six months. Even if going "steady" meant a positive engagement, which it does not, the average young man would agree to your having recreation and the companionship of friends.

HEALTH

New Cure for Psoriasis Found

By ROYAL E. COPELAND, M. D.

"PSORIASIS," AS the doctors call it, is an extremely common disorder of the skin.

Yet its actual cause remains a mystery.

Various theories have been advanced, but so far none has been accepted. It has been suggested that psoriasis is due to a parasitic infection, to digestive disturbances, to nervous disease and to glandular disorder.

The encouraging report from Germany that the disease can be attributed to a disturbance of the body preventing proper use of the fat consumed.

Encouraging because if this is true millions of sufferers from psoriasis will benefit by changes in diet.

According to this new theory, the psoriasis victim is unable to digest fat. Cases of psoriasis have been successfully treated with a diet low in fat. Such fatty foods as bacon, lard, butter, cream, oil, pork, goose and cod are omitted from the diet. Even egg yolk is prohibited because of its high fat content.

This diet is continued over a period of several weeks. Anywhere from two to six weeks will pass before any improvement is observed. In severe cases it may take even longer. With improvement, when it comes, the dietary restrictions should be continued because psoriasis has a tendency to recur.

DON'T CONFUSE IT

Psoriasis must not be confused with other skin disturbances. It is characterized by dry and scaly areas which are raised and ever moist. It involves any part of the skin, but in most cases is found at the elbows or knees. Unlike other skin disorders, psoriasis rarely itches and is not painful.

It is a stubborn disease and despite the persistent applications of ointments and ointments, little relief is obtained. The chronic form may persist for years and then suddenly disappear, but as a rule it will reappear within a short time.

Many are unduly alarmed on observing a person with extensive psoriasis, involving the face and hands. There is no need of fear, because the disease is not "catching" and cannot be passed from one person to another. It is not improbable that psoriasis is influenced by heredity. Although the doctors meet a case now and then and cannot determine its origin.

Never resort to self-medication. Consult your doctor and see what he advises. What you think is psoriasis may be another disease or some other chronic disorder of the skin.

Bend Left! Bend Right!

TODAY'S Miss must be healthy if she will be beautiful. For health is the fashion from the crown of the head to the tips of the toes.

One must be balm and firm and graceful to wear the present style well. In today's picture Nell Brinkley shows just how all these tedious morning exercises count in the ensemble of today.

Shoulders must be straight, heads erect, backs smooth and strong, tumblers in and ankles slim.

So hop out of bed quickly, turn on the radio and do your daily dawn work. One-two! Bend from the waist! Three-four! Touch the floor.

Gossamer-Textured Powder

Gives Pearly, Translucent Glow

BY THE BEAUTY EDITOR

IF YOU ARE looking for an utterly new kind of face powder—a powder of such gossamer texture as to completely take your breath away—here's glad news for you today.

So very light and fine is this powder (it actually looks transparent on your face) that it may quite possibly revolutionize the cosmetic industry.

At any rate it opens up a new world of beauty to women as no powder has done in the past ten years.

In introducing this powder the makers have been forced to scrap hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of machinery. The old method of grinding powder, crushing it, and putting it through sieves, has been completely done away with.

This powder, buffed to pearly softness by a new air-sifting process, imparts a pearly, translucent tint to the complexion. When seen through a microscope, it makes old powder (good by all old standards) look like the rocky coast of Maine by comparison.

Even to the naked eye there is a difference. It actually looks fluffier and feels fluffier. Its makers promise that it will end two common cosmetic evils—powder wrinkles and powder dryness. Be that as it may, it does impart a fresh, alive, glowing look to the face.

This new process of making will stir your imagination. Locked up with an unrelenting blast of air, each tiny particle is kept whirling at cyclone force (38,000 revolutions a minute) until it has hashed itself into a fine enough state to fall through a tiny silk screen in the middle of the drum.

It is a centrifugal law that the finest particles always come to the center. Anyway, the net result seems to be that the powder is finer than anything—powder or not powder—that has ever been thought of before.

And when you consider that the purer and finer a powder is, the less chance it has of clogging the pores, you'll agree with us that this one is well worthy of our editorial ratings.

To learn the name of this super-duper powder which adheres to the skin for an incredibly long time, call The Beauty Editor, Liberty 4000, or write to her at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Josephine Culbertson on Bridge

A Bit of Guile

Like the hand of a fair lady, the bridge hand which cannot be won by force will often capitulate to guile.

The deal given below is an example of this principle, but the declarer met the stage for it by a beautiful psychological play.

Naturally the technique he employed is not to be recommended for ordinary use, but ordinary methods could not have succeeded in making South's somewhat optimistic contract, while the subtle bit of strategy which he employed did make it. The purpose of the play is therefore his own recommendation.

East Dealer. Neither side vulnerable.

With four honor-tricks South was surely strong enough to re-open with a takeout double, particularly in view of his distribution.

He had splendid support for any new suit North could bid, and his own spade suit could stand a light raise. North's two Kings warranted this raise.

West was up against it for a good lead and finally elected to lay down his Ace of diamonds.

When South dropped the Queen West decided there could be no harm in continuing the suit, despite East's discouraging three-put.

South won the second trick with the King and found himself with probable loser in each suit. He realized that his only hope of contact was to sneak a heart lead through, and this hope was enhanced by the fact that his bidding had conveyed to West no accurate picture of his distribution.

Before making this play, however, he decided to set the psychological stage. As long as dummy retained an entry, West would be extremely likely to clutter up with the heart Ace.

South, therefore, before trying the heart lead, deliberately removed dummy's re-entry. A low lead was won by the King and declarer's hand re-entered with the spade Ace.

Now came the heart lead. If East had signalled in trump to show three, West, with three sure tricks in his own hand, would have had no excuse to duck.

East, however, was afraid to signal because it might give away the location of the Queen if declarer held a six-card suit. And West, lulled into false security by the fact that dummy's King of spades was gone, decided to play for two tricks in hearts.

They turned out to be two birds in the hand. West like the one that he had let slip out of his hand, also failed to materialize.

South scored up the game and listened with satisfaction to the mutual recriminations of his adversaries.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

Question—What can I do to rid of clearances on my fingers? I have tried using lemon juice but it does not seem to do much. Do you know of any home remedy or maybe a cosmetic I could buy that would remove these unsightly stains? Bette D. Webber.

Answer—I know just what you feel about your hands because cigarette stains on a lady's fingers are no beauty blemish. They are hateful and untidy looking. A mixture of peroxide and powdered pumice stone will remove light stains of this kind. And cosmetic counters all offer preparations that are satisfactory.

The easiest way out of the problem is to wash dishes three times a day. Do we hear screams of protest? Oh, very well, have it your own way.

IF TOO BUSY TO GO—JUST TELEPHONE

MINUTES—NOT MILES

There's someone you really should see — an old school friend, a relative, maybe someone you used to know well but who moved away. The trouble is that they live twenty or twenty-five miles away, and you "just can't take the time" to go to see them.

When did you see them last? Vacation-time last summer? Anyway, you sent them a Christmas card!

But that isn't real friendship.

An Adventure of Casanova

The Death That Sugar Cane Could Not Make Sweet

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO EVERYBODY:

And hold everything, because today's adventure deals with an exciting incident in the "Memoirs of Casanova." Of course our Casanova isn't the Italian one who's adventures shocked staid old Europe, centuries ago, but a modern Casanova, who lives at 3917 Fourth avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. Ralph is his name—Ralph Casanova—and there isn't a lady mentioned in the story except Lady Adventure, and she's there with bells on. Come on over to the beautiful island of Puerto Rico with Ralph and me and see that adventure which made Ralph one of the Immortals in this Adventurers' Club of ours.

When Ralph was only 12 years old, he lived in the town of Nuevitas, Puerto Rico, where the sugar cane comes from that eventually finds its way into your breakfast coffee. The youngsters are movie fans there the same as they are here, and one sunny day when Ralph and five or six of his playmates were munching big sticks of sugar cane, they decided to play "Hollywood" and pretend they were making a movie thriller.

Ralph was picked for the hero—he had to be with a name like Casanova—and a little friend of his who had long yellow curls was the heroine. True to the standards of the pictures, the rest of the boys, who were villains, had to cause a lot of trouble and bodily harm to the hero and heroine. Ralph—like a true Casanova—defended his "lady love" to make the picture more exciting, but he was no match for the "heavies."

The railroad that carried the sugar cane to the factories suggested a fiendish torture that they had never before on the screen, and so, with a wild yell of triumph, Ralph was borne to the track and tied to the rails, hand and foot, and his golden-haired "sweetheart" was tied to a nearby tree to witness the end of her hero.

And that's exactly what she—or rather he—almost did witness, while the bandits were gloating over their victory in their den.

Ralph says he lay helpless on the tracks, pretending he was dead and enjoying the dramatic situation, when he heard a strange humming noise from the steel track near his ear. For a few seconds he did not realize its frightful significance, but when the noise increased in power, and vibration went through his body, a cold sweat came over him and he grasped the awful truth.

A train was approaching on that very track!

He yelled with horror and so did the boy tied to the tree, but the other boys—some distance away—thought it all part of the game and laughed in glee.

And meanwhile a heavily loaded train came steadily down the track toward the tied boy. Ralph says his mind worked perfectly, and he took in the whole danger of his situation. The train was coming down hill. It was loaded. It was going fast, and the engineer, even if he did see Ralph, would never be able to stop in time.

When the other boys realized their mistake, Ralph knew it would already be too late to reach him. He tried to break his bonds, but they were too secure. The ground under him was now shaking. He was just able to turn his head far enough to see up the track and the sight sent the cold chills down his back. The train was now two hundred yards away and coming fast. The whistle shrieked a despairing note—as though the engineer were screaming his inability to stop.

One hundred yards now, and a split second to live! Ralph took one despairing look at the puffing monster about to grind out his young life and closed his eyes.

A roar sounded in his ears—rough hands tore at his clothes—a knife flashed in the sun and Ralph felt himself flung roughly down the embankment. Sharp stones tore his flesh and the terrific heat of the locomotive seared his face. He thought the train had hit him and expected death, but instead found himself picked up, more dead than alive, by a kindly-faced overrider who had rescued him under the very wheeler of the locomotive.

Wow! That's close enough, even for a Casanova! But "a miss is as good as a mile," and Ralph lived to collect his ten bucks and membership from me—and a terrible lesson in life.

Tommy read: "Rescue from Fiery Death."

Americans, Defend Your Constitution!

SEPTEMBER 17, 1787 — Americans, defend your Constitution! —September 17, 1935.

"The Constitution is a bill of powers, the great residuum being the RIGHTS OF THE PEOPLE"—James Madison, father of the Constitution.

One hundred and forty-eight years ago today in Philadelphia the Constitution of the United States was adopted.

September 17, 1787, was a momentous day not only in our own history but in the history of the world, for our Constitution has been a model for all States that have since declared their independence of tyrannical governments.

Our Constitution is a model for other peoples because it contains the ETERNAL VERITIES of man's desire for JUSTICE, his aspiration for PERSONAL LIBERTY and his deep-rooted instinct for PRIVATE PROPERTY.

GEORGE WASHINGTON, who was the President of the constitutional convention, said of this great masterpiece:

"THE CONSTITUTION IS PROVIDED WITH MORE CHECKS AND BARRIERS AGAINST THE INTRODUCTION OF TYRANNY THAN ANY GOVERNMENT HITHERTO INSTITUTED AMONG MORTALS HAS POSSESSED. THE POWER UNDER THE CONSTITUTION WILL ALWAYS BE IN THE PEOPLE. TILL CHANGED BY AN EXPLICIT AND AUTHENTIC ACT OF THE WHOLE PEOPLE, IT IS SACREDLY OBLIGATORY UPON ALL."

Beside being a palladium of social justice and providing for the subordination of the executive will to the mandates of the people, the Constitution contains that most precious of all guarantees in the first article of the Bill of Rights—the guarantees of FREEDOM OF RELIGIOUS WORSHIP, of FREE PRESS, of FREE SPEECH and the right of PEACEABLE ASSEMBLY.

Our Constitution is the child of the Declaration of Independence.

Thomas Jefferson, who was the father of the declaration, and therefore the grandfather of the Constitution, said of the latter when it was finished:

"THE CONSTITUTION IS UNQUESTIONABLY THE WISEST EVER YET PRESENTED TO MEN."

Not only is our Constitution the wisest but it is the STRONGEST.

IT has stood as a rock of Gibraltar for nearly a century and a half against the assaults of cunning politicians, crackpot theorists and the reactionary influences of centralized autocracy which the Constitution itself was specifically created to destroy.

One hundred and forty-eight years of the Constitution have been one hundred and forty-eight years of PERSONAL LIBERTY such as no other people in the world has had, PROSPERITY which has been the envy of every other nation, and sanely expanding NATIONAL GREATNESS that has caused us to be respected and feared.

The preserver of the Constitution was Abraham Lincoln.

How profoundly he felt about our great charter of liberties is reflected in these words:

"I could not feel that, to the best of my ability, I had even tried to preserve the Constitution if, to save slavery or any minor matter, I should permit the wreck of government, country and Constitution all together."

It is not enough today to CELEBRATE the birth of the Constitution.

Every American should KNOW the Constitution as well as he knows the lease to the premises he occupies for the Constitution is the lease of his liberties and rights.

THE Constitution should be the POLITICAL BIBLE of all Americans. Its English is as simple as the Bible and its vast vision of DEMOCRACY, FREEDOM and INDIVIDUALISM is condensed in the fewest words possible.

William Pitt, the great English statesman at the time of the American Revolution, said of the Constitution:

"IT WILL BE THE WONDER AND ADMIRATION OF ALL FUTURE GENERATIONS AND THE MODEL OF ALL FUTURE CONSTITUTIONS."

Our Constitution fulfilled Pitt's prophecy, uttered in the eighteenth century, less than seventy-five years later, when it survived the greatest trial that a country can be put to—civil war.

It was with this in mind that Grover Cleveland uttered these words on the one hundredth anniversary of the Constitution in 1887:

"WHEN WE LOOK DOWN ONE HUNDRED YEARS AND SEE THE ORIGIN OF OUR CONSTITUTION, WHEN WE CONTEMPLATE ALL ITS TRIALS AND TRIUMPHS, WHEN WE REALIZE HOW COMPLETELY THE PRINCIPLES UPON WHICH IT IS BASED HAVE MET EVERY NATIONAL NEED, HOW DEVOUTLY SHOULD WE SAY WITH FRANKLIN, 'GOD GOVERNS IN THE AFFAIRS OF MEN.'"

Words particularly pregnant today, when there is a movement on foot to tamper with the Constitution on the specious plea that it is no longer "adequate."

THREE THOUSAND attempts have been made to amend the Constitution since its adoption, but only TWENTY-ONE amendments have been adopted.

THE ability of the Constitution to withstand the battering of civil war, foreign wars, and amendment-mutilators also claimed the admiration of the Englishman, James Bryce, author of the famous "The American Commonwealth," who said:

"NO WONDER THE AMERICANS ARE PROUD OF AN INSTRUMENT WHICH HAS PASSED UNSCATHED THROUGH THE FURNACE OF CIVIL WAR."

The paper on which the Constitution is written, and which is locked in a vault in the Library of Congress at Washington, is the only thing about the Constitution that is physical.

It is a SPIRITUAL DOCUMENT. It has to do with SPIRITUAL value.

Every American should today REALIZE that the guarantees in this document are part of his life and breath.

It guarantees his freedom of movement and thought.

It guarantees him against tyrannous practices of any kind—imprisonment without reason, excessive bail, cruel and unusual punishment and search and seizure without a warrant.

These are SPIRITUAL values. Calvin Coolidge said on these profound ethical values in our fundamental laws:

"THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES IS THE FINAL REFUGE OF EVERY RIGHT THAT IS ENJOYED BY ANY AMERICAN CITIZEN."

THE great men of the constitutional convention who promulgated to the world on September 17, 1787, this great table of laws were men of great spiritual vision.

Justice Joseph Story said of them:

"THEY SCORNED EVERY ATTEMPT TO RISE TO POWER AND INFLUENCE BY THE COMMON ARTS OF DEMAGOGUES, AND THEY WERE CONTENT TO TRUST THEIR CHARACTERS AND THEIR CONDUCT TO THE DELIBERATE JUDGMENT OF POSTERITY."

Great days, great men! Little days, little men!

In the public celebrations today throughout the nation there should be readings from the Constitution — of those parts particularly which define the purposes of the Constitution in that superb preamble, the respective duties prescribed for the three co-ordinate branches of the government, the strict demarcation between federal and state rights, and, above all, the GUARANTEES OF FREEDOM FOR THE HUMBLEST CITIZEN IN THE REPUBLIC.

Its sweep is epical, and every word in it is related to and meant for YOU — no matter who you are, no matter what your social position, race, color or religion.

William H. Seward said of this American Magna Charta:

"THE CONSTITUTION DEVOTES THE NATIONAL DOMAIN TO UNION, TO JUSTICE, TO DEFENSE, TO WELFARE AND TO LIBERTY."

WHEN George Washington uttered the following he was looking with clairvoyant gaze right into the year 1935:

"THIS DEVOTION WILL LEAD US TO RESIST STRONGLY ALL IMPATIENCE OF CONSTITUTIONAL LIMITATIONS OF FEDERAL POWER AND TO CHECK PERSISTENTLY THE INCREASING TENDENCY TO EXTEND THE SCOPE OF FEDERAL LEGISLATION INTO THE DOMAIN OF STATE AND LOCAL JURISDICTION UPON THE PLEA OF SUBSERVING THE PUBLIC WELFARE."

How well this great man knew the abuse of power that lay in the "general welfare" phrase in the preamble to the Constitution!

Almost one hundred years ago Daniel Webster made a speech in New York City.

This paragraph from this speech should be repeated today by every speaker at every meeting in the nation:

"LET US THEN STAND BY THE CONSTITUTION AS IT IS, AND BY OUR COUNTRY AS IT IS, UNITED AND ENTIRE; LET IT BE A TRUTH ENGRAVEN ON OUR HEARTS; LET IT BE BORNE ON THE FLAG UNDER WHICH WE RALLY IN EVERY EMERGENCY, THAT WE HAVE ONE COUNTRY, ONE CONSTITUTION, ONE DESTINY!"

And silently, on this day, let all those of our people who cannot be present at anniversary celebrations highly resolve, with Washington, Madison, Jefferson and Lincoln, that this GREATEST OF CHARTERS OF HUMAN LIBERTIES SHALL NOT PERISH FROM THE EARTH!
